EXILED JUNTA HEAD CHEERED ON RETURN

Trouble Is Feared if His Opponent Wins; Mera Ahead in Ecuador.

Santiago, Chile, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Estimates received at the ministry of interior tonight indicated that Arturo Alessandri, former president and candidate of the center parties, had received at least 60 per cent of the votes cast for president of Chile in today's election.

The government refrained from making any announcement that he had won, as caution was considered advisable, but officials asserted privately there seemed to be little doubt of it.

In Valparaiso, however, Alessandri was running behind Col. Marmaduke Grove, leader in the Socialist junta of last June, who appealed to antiforeign and nationalistic sentiment in his campaign.

Grove Returns From Exile.

Col. Grove arrived at Valparaiso from exile on Easter Island, far out in the Pacific, and was cheered by a crowd of 10,000. He had planned to come to Santiago tonight, and there was some apprehension in government circles that trouble might develop, but later it was learned he doubtless would remain in Valparaiso.

Eugenio Matte, one of the colonel's fellow exiles, delivered a speech in Valparaiso in which he attacked the government strongly. One official asserted the speech almost amounted to inciting to revolt in the event that Alessandri was declared winner.

Returns Are Delayed.

Alessandri supporters estimated he would poll more than 225,000 votes. Because of the complicated system of counting secret and long ballots—the constitutional congress is also being elected—official or unofficial figures can not be tabulated until late.

Estimates based on early voting indicated Alessandri carried the important provinces of Terapaca, Antofagasta, Apacama, Concepcion, Cautin and Valviva by large majorities and was receiving a heavy vote in Santiago and Valpa.aiso. The voting was orderly and unusually quiet. Despite cloudy weather a record vote was expected.

Other Candidates.

Other presidential candidates were Enrique Zanartu, who favors a semi-Socialist regime; Dr. Jose Santos Salas, Independent; Elias Lafertte, Communist, and Hector Rodriguez de la Sotta, head of the Conservative party.

For 45 seats in the Senate there are 130 candidates and for 142 seats in the chamber, 854 candidates.

Early estimates were that Rodriguez de la Sotta was leading Zanartu for second place in the race for the presidency and that Grove, who has been in exile since late last June after he temporarily overthrew his colleague, Carlos Davila, was receiving only a small vote.

Alessandri needs an absolute majority of all votes to win. Otherwise the decision will rest with the new congress.

Mera Leads in Ecuador.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Numerous disorders accompanied today's presidential election, incomplete returns from which indicated a large lead for Martinez Mera, the Liberal candidate. The voting will be concluded tomorrow.

Mounted police repeatedly charged crowds in Guayaquil and some persons were injured. A few excited partisans fired revolvers into the air, with the result that the authorities decided to search every voter approaching the polling places.

It was estimated that 15 per cent of the number of voters were women. Dispatches from Quito, the capital, said the result there was uncertain.

The Conservative party's candidate is Manuel Sotomayor Luna.

(Associated Press.)

President Mejia Colindres of Honduras late yesterday messaged Minister Celeo Davila here that the elections in Honduras were conducted without disorder.

Colindres said, too, that Angel Zuniga Huete, Liberal candidate for the presidency, in a statement had said he and his party—of which Colindres is a member—would accept the decision of the electorate. The Conservative candidate is Tiburcio Carias.

The Honduran Legation had received no election returns.

2 DEAD, SCORE HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Woman Killed and Nine Are Injured in Head-On Crash; Ambulance in Wreck.

One person was killed, one probably fatally injured and nearly a score were injured yesterday as the week-end count of accident casualties was swelled by two head-on automobile collisions in nearby Maryland and the overturning of an ambulance en route here with a sick patient after striking another car on the Lee highway. Another person died of injuries received in an accident.

Mrs Margaret Totten, 33, of 1309 Thirteenth street northwest, was killed, Stanley Berry, 6, colored, probably fatally injured and eight other persons hurt in a head-on crash between two automobiles near Glymont, Md., early yesterday.

All of the injured were rushed to local hospitals after emergency treatment at the Naval Hospital at Indian Head, Md. Mrs. Totten was pronounced dead at the Naval Hospital and her body was brought back to Washington last night to rest at the Zurhorst undertaking establishment pending funeral arrangements.

Arthur A. Bain, 33, of 1300 Massachusetts avenue northwest, was driver of the car in which Mrs. Tottem was riding in the rumble seat. State

Venizelos Quits Again As Premier of Greece

GERMAN LEADER FAVORS MILITIA PLAN OF FRANCE

Gen. Groener Sees Way Out of Controversy Over Armaments.

DECLARES NEW IDEA MUST BE CONCEIVED

(Copyright, 1932 by the Associated Press.)

Berlin, Oct. 30.—Germany should accept the new French proposal to substitute militia for the European professional army, Wilhelm Groener, defense minister in the Marx, Mueller and Bruening cabinets and the last quartermaster general of the imperial army, believes.

"Premier Herriot's proposal may point the way out of the impasse of the Geneva arms parley," this distinguished general and writer of standard works on military tactics, told the Associated Press in an interview.

"The Geneva discussions hitherto have furnished no workable basis for disarmament. So long as an attempt is made to arrive at disarmament by discussing categories of weapons and wrangling over terminology, no progress can be made. Something fundamentally new or different must be conceived."

Creates New Situation.

Gen. Groener said the French premier's militia proposal creates an entirely new situation in the international arms discussion and the plan should be seized upon by Germany and other nations as a means for getting out of a blind alley.

"Herriot, by taking up ideas promulgated as far back as 1795 by Immanuel Kant in his treatise on eternal peace, probably supplied that fundamentally new thing for the Geneva parley.

"I have given much thought to the question of militia and I favor it. Contrary to many military men who rather look down upon the Swiss militia, I consider the Swiss army an able instrument of defense. Herriot's proposal is practicable, however, only if two conditions are fulfilled. First, that no exceptions be made in the case of any nation whatsoever; second, that the obligations to serve in the militia be universal in every country.

Cites Aerial Warfare.

"In favoring the militia I am not unmindful of the drawbacks nor do I consider world peace assured thereby. For land warfare isn't nearly as decisive nowadays as it was even at the beginning of the World War. Aerial warfare will decide the war of

Extortionists Threaten Life of Doctor's Heir

Chicago, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Extortion notes demanding $10,000 from Dr. Walter G. McGuire, prominent Chicago physician, and threatening the life of his 15-year-old son, John, if the sum is not paid, were made public today by police.

A guard was maintained about the McGuire home and officials planned to continue convoying the boy, prospective heir to $1,000,000, to and from classes at Quigley Preparatory School, where he is studying for the priesthood.

Falling Plane Ducks Capital Youth in Bay

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Two Yale University students got a ducking today but were not injured when they were forced to light on New York Bay in an airplane they had rented to "see the sights."

William W. Barksdale, jr., 20, of Clarksville, Tenn., and Henry C. Rowland, jr., 19, of 2332 Massachusetts avenue, Washington, D. C., rented the plane at Floyd Bennett Field after Barksdale had produced his license and convinced field officials he was a pilot.

They had been in the air about an hour when Barksdale discovered the fuel was nearly gone. He tried to make it back to the field, but was forced down on the water. A police plane rescued the two while hundreds watched from the shore.

The plane was badly damaged, but the boys were only soaked to the skin.

Young Rowland, son of Henry C. Rowland, well-known author, has lived in Washington since 1917, when his family moved here from Paris. He attended the Force School, St. Alban's and Andover Academy, in Massachusetts. He is now in his junior year at Yale.

PUT NATION FIRST, ROOSEVELT URGES

Speaks in Massachusetts; Is Confident Man Can Handle Problem.

Groton, Mass., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Franklin D. Roosevelt said today the solution to the present difficulties would come from men who, though they may differ in parties, have the same ideas of government.

Speaking to a group from the Massachusetts Progressive League in the reception room of the parents' home on the campus of the Groton School for Boys, the Democratic presidential candidate said he was confident the solution of "our troubles can be handled by man."

The brief talk came during an interruption in his work of extending his plans for campaigning in New England to include a trip through Rhode Island and Connecticut on Tuesday before journeying to his home at Hyde Park, N. Y.

A little earlier he had worshiped at the chapel on the campus and had made a luncheon talk to the Groton students in the main dining hall of the school. He related to them his views of men and women going into politics and told them there was just as much necessity for officers to take part in local community activities as in those of the State and Nation.

His plans for going into Connecticut and Rhode Island call for his departure from Boston about 8 a. m., to motor through Providence and Woonsocket, R. I.; Worcester and Springfield, Mass., and Hartford, Winsted and Canaan in Connecticut, arriving at Hyde Park at 6 o'clock that night. He does not plan to make any speeches in those States.

The progressives were presented by Felix Frankfurter, a Harvard Law

Rescue of German Fliers Is Denied

Reports Two Were Taken From Ship in Channel Called False.

London, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—British air officials said tonight there was no truth in reports from Brussels of the rescue of the pilot and radio operator of a regular Lufthansa freight and mail plane, which was forced down last night in the English Channel.

"The plane simply vanished into the channel," an official of the air ministry said.

"In a storm like that in the Channel last night," asserted an officer at Croyden Airdrome, "no plane could continue afloat for more than a short time. It would be battered to pieces by the waves."

5-State Trip to Precede Address in "Garden" Tonight.

SERIES OF SPEECHES PLANNED EN ROUTE

(Associated Press.)

Shifting his bid for electoral votes temporarily from the Midwest to pivotal sections of the East, President Hoover yesterday prepared for a dash today through five Atlantic Coast line States.

The Chief Executive spent virtually his entire day in the White House study, writing the address he will deliver tonight in Madison Square Garden, in New York, and other speeches to be given en route.

With a morning-to-midnight itinerary before him, the President has planned to make today one of the busiest days of his drive for reelection.

First Stop in Baltimore.

Still another Middle Western swing has been decided upon. It will be made shortly after Mr. Hoover returns from New York. He will leave here today at 10:40 a. m., making the first of his eight stops en route at Baltimore less than an hour later. There he will deliver from the railroad station a 10 or 15 minute address before swinging into Delaware for a brief talk from the rear platform of his special train at Wilmington.

After another speech at Chester, Pa., he will leave his train at 2:30 p. m. at Philadelphia for a 20-minute address, with the station plaza his stage.

Then, in swift succession, he will speak at Trenton, New Brunswick and Elizabeth, N. J., before leaving his train once more for a speech at Newark, beginning shortly before 8 p. m. and lasting nearly an hour.

To Be "Hot" Speech.

With the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York the next stopping place, the Chief Executive and Mrs. Hoover will receive several delegations, including a group of disabled veterans, before dining and going by automobile to Madison Square Garden, several blocks away.

Mr. Hoover has looked forward to this New York address as one of his major utterances of the campaign.

In the words of Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, who conferred with the President about it Saturday, the speech will be a "hot one," shaped along the lines of his Friday night address in Indianapolis, where he attacked statements and policies of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee.

Plans Fifth Midwest Trip.

With his special train scheduled to leave New York at midnight and arrive in the National Capital at 7 a. m. tomorrow, the President plans to plunge into immediate preparation for a fifth swing into the electorally important States of the Midwest.

An address from the White House at 11:15 p. m. Wednesday, his contribution to the celebration of "California Day," is scheduled for the

New Czechoslovakian Cabinet Takes Office

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—A new government headed by Jan Malypetr, Czech agrarian leader, as premier, was in power today. He succeeds Frantisek Udrzal, who retired because of illness. Malypetr's cabinet was appointed officially yesterday.

Most of the cabinet remained intact, including Dr. Edouard Benes, foreign minister. Four changes were appointments of Jan Czerny, Czech agrarian, minister of interior; Bohumil Bradac, Czech agrarian, minister of war; Milan Hodza, Slovak agrarian, minister of agriculture, and Rudolf Bechyne, Czech Social Democrat, minister of railways.

JOBLESS HORDES STORM BUCKINGHAM PALACE; FAIL IN CONFLICT WITH POLICE

Political Fighting Fatal

Two Are Dead in Germany, With Nazis and Reds Playing Important Part; Several Are Injured in Ireland Battle.

Berlin, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Political battles, in which Adolf Hitler's National Socialist followers and the Communists played prominent part, kept the police in various cities busy over the week-end.

At Hamburg a member of the Republican Reichs-Banner organization was shot dead by Nazi assailants. Many other persons were seriously injured in street fights between Nazis and Communists. Police used their revolvers to restore order and scores of arrests were made.

Minor skirmishes, with several participants injured, were reported in Berlin and other parts of the Reich.

At Duisburg a 13-year-old boy bystander was shot dead while Nazis were battling with Communists.

Dublin, Irish Free State, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Rival crowds fought a fierce battle today following an attempt to break up a meeting of the Army Comrades Association, at Mallow. A dozen combatants received scalp wounds and one man was shot through the leg.

A hundred police used their batons freely to separate the fighters. A thousand persons attended the meeting, held in the town hall, over which a black flag was hoisted. Ultimately the police drove Republican objectors from the building.

3 SUSPECTS SEIZED IN LINDBERGH CASE

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—The interstate police teletype system tonight reported the arrest of three men at Flanders, Long Island, as kidnaping suspects.

One of the prisoners, the police message said, admitted having written letters to the New Jersey State police and to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh regarding the kidnaping of Lindberg's son.

When arrested, the message said, the men were driving in an automobile with New Jersey license plates.

The message was sent out by the Sheriff of Suffolk County at Riverhead, who asked if the suspects were wanted by police in New York or other cities on the teletype system.

He gave their names as Joseph Rigno, alias Joe Monte, 48 of Franklin, N. J.; Santa Ragno, 26, of Franklin, N. J., and Mike Radano, 38, of Queens.

One of the men had several newspaper clippings in his pocket, the message said, pertaining to the Lindbergh and other kidnapings.

Franklin, N. J., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Chief of Police H. C. Irons said tonight that Joseph Rigno, alias Joe Montey, arrested at Flanders, Long Island, as a kidnaping suspect, was examined early in the Lindbergh investigation and absolved of any connection with that crime.

Irons said Rigno is a harmless shoe repairer in this town who apparently has illusions about his ability as a solver of crimes. The chief said the man has a friend whom he asserts can use hypnotic powers at the scene of any crime and reenact it so that it can be immediately solved.

It was in that connection, Irons said, that Rigno wrote letters to Col Lindbergh, State police and New York City police during the Lindbergh investigation. As late as September 27, he wrote to New York police offering his aid in solving the Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon ransom angle.

Lord Methuen, British Field Marshal, Is Dead

London, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Field Marshal Lord Methuen died today at his Wiltshire home, Corsham Court, at the age of 87.

He had been a soldier 68 years.

CAMPBELL'S REALTY LICENSE IS REVOKED

Herbert M. Campbell, who was tried and acquitted in the famous Mary Baker murder case, has been deprived of his license to operate as a real estate broker in Arlington County, it was announced last night by the Virginia Real Estate Commission in Richmond.

The commission, after a hearing in which Campbell was charged with collecting "moneys from Floyd S. Wheeler and W. W. McClaine, and failing to account or remit the money," decided to revoke his license.

The commission ruled that Campbell "is unworthy and incompetent to act in the capacity of a licensed real estate broker." The decision was announced by John W. Moore, chairman of the commission.

Campbell was served with copies of the charges early in October. On October 20, at a hearing in Arlington County Courthouse, he denied the allegations. He was represented by Herbert S. Ward. Amos C. Crounse represented the real estate commission.

Last Wednesday Campbell took a nonsuit in his $500,000 damage action against Col. Calvin H. Goddard, ballistic expert, of Northwestern University, who testified in District Supreme Court that Campbell's gun killed Mary Baker.

His counsel was allowed 30 days to revise a declaration in a $250,000 libel suit against Goddard based on an interview given by the ballistic expert to a newspaper.

Gold Ore on Highway Starts Idaho Stampede

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—A piece of quartz picked up casually by a road worker has started a small gold rush into the Fourth of July Canyon, east of here.

The road worker, Albert Anderson, of Spokane, saw the quartz as he walked behind a road grader and picked it up quietly for later examination. William Ashley, registrar of the United States Land Office, said the piece had a gold content of $13,000 to the ton. Anderson staked two claims on what he believed to be the stringer lead and then told friends about it. The rush followed.

Attackers Urged On By Red Orators; Few Casualties.

London, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Mounted and foot police saved the king's palace and official residences on Downing street from attack by thousands of unemployed and "hunger marchers" after a hard battle today at Trafalgar Square.

Booed to the echo by an angry crowd of the unemployed and sympathizers, British "bobbies" were forced to retreat at least once as the mob attempted to swarm parapets leading to Buckingham Palace and Westminster. The crowd was finally forced back into Trafalgar Square, where the loudest voices of British communism and unemployed leaders were condemning the government.

Today's casualty list hardly exceeded ten or twelve persons injured, although ambulances were kept busy for a while, as compared with the 60 or 70 injured when "hunger marchers" from all parts of the country gathered Thursday in Hyde Park.

Serious Fight Due Tomorrow.

More serious fighting is anticipated Tuesday before the House of Commons, when the unemployed will attempt to present a petition there.

Thousands gathered for the great mass meeting in Trafalgar Square stormed entrances to the Mall leading to Buckingham Palace at its west end and Whitehall, which street is flanked by government offices.

Led by a dark, bareheaded man, screaming "Smash the palace windows!" the crowd attempted feat to rush Admiralty Arch, which commands the Mall, but failed when the massive iron gates were closed against them. They were pushed back by a police rush.

A crowd of many thousands then poured into Whitehall, but were met by a stone wall of "bobbies" at the Horse Guards' Parade (an open space off Whitehall well known to tourists as scene of the Daily relief ceremony). They were driven back.

Police Driven Back.

Serious fighting broke out just as speech-making from the pedestal of massive Nelson column, in Trafalgar Square, had ended. The crowd commandeered a taxi in an attempt to force through police lines. With a mighty surge, a company of blue-coats was driven back, but only for a moment.

"Bobbies" discarded their capes and with drawn batons charged into the mob, cracking heads and felling a few. Most of the crowd scurried to safety and the street was cleared inside of two minutes.

In another two minutes, rioters had closed in again on police and an isolated squad of about 30 "Bobbies," who again drew batons, appeared engaged in an uneven fight. Mounted police charged out from under Admiralty Arch and rescued them.

At another place, a policeman was pushed from his horse, which kicked him while he was on the ground, and he was removed in an ambulance.

New York Taxi Driver Returns Missing Gems

New York, Oct. 30 (U.P.).—Mrs. J. T. Spalding, of Boston, forgot a bag containing jewelry which she valued at $10,000 when she left a taxicab and entered a hotel today.

She notified police at about the same time Harry Kimmel, driver of the cab she had used, drove up to the station and returned the missing jewels.

Free Trip to France Offered in Movie Contest of The Post

Write 20-Word Interpretation of Dramatic Climax in "One Way Passage" at Warner Bros. Earle to Win Free Voyage to Europe.

Well, here is the one big opportunity to make such a dream come true!

"One Way Passage," a Warner Bros. and Vitaphone picture opens Friday at Warner Bros. Earle Theater. Seldom has a stranger or more dramatic or more fascinating romance been unfolded on the screen. Kay Francis and William Powell, one of the most famous and popular of screen teams, are seen in the starring roles.

"One Way Passage" has an unusual ending. For the most logical twenty-word interpretation of the dramatic climax a round trip to France will be awarded.

But the winner will be royally entertained before he or she even starts the sea voyage to France. By special arrangements made by The Washington Post, the winner and escort, will from the moment they leave Washington for New York, be assured of a thrilling, exciting and joyful trip.

The winner and escort will leave Washington via the Eastern Air Transport System in one of the luxuriously appointed Curtiss-Condor twenty-passenger planes. The Edison Hotel, one of New York's most modern hosteries, will be their stopping place while in New York.

The voyage to France will be on the French Line's "Aristocrat of the Seas"—S. S. Paris. Days of continual pleasure aboard a floating palace of the sea.

The rules of the contest are simple:

1. No employe of a Warner Bros. Theater, The Washington Post, the French Line, Eastern Air Transport

New Laws Are Announced In Contract Bridge Playing

Doubled Not Vulnerable Undertrick Penalties Are Increased and Bonuses for Grand Slams Boosted by Code to Be Effective Tomorrow.

By ELY CULBERTSON.

Effective tomorrow, more than 30,000,000 bridge players in America and throughout the world will swing from the old laws and scoring in contract to the new international code. To American bridge players this event is second only to presidential elections in interest, and its effect upon the American home life might easily be even more far reaching. Tomorrow many millions of frowns and puckered lips will be in evidence trying to memorize the new scoring table.

To a student of sociology the picture of millions of humans swinging around simultaneously, almost at a single moment, is highly significant of our modern mass organization. When we consider how difficult it is to train a company of soldiers to turn correctly right or left or to train a company of chorus girls to dance synchronously the magnitude of the task in teaching millions to change their habit in an intellectual game like contract bridge is simply appalling. And yet, there is no doubt that the new international code will be adopted almost unanimously—except for the few diehards. This only proves that people will work much harder for their own pleasure than for bread.

This is the first international code in bridge history. For many years the traditional law-giving body for American players was the Whist Club, of which Charles M. Schwab, an enthusiastic bridger himself, is the president. The Portland Club, of London, made the laws for England.

TAMMANY METHODS ON FUNDS ALLEGED

G.O.P. Claims New Evidence Uncovered on Foes in Drive for Cash.

(Associated Press.)

The Republican national committee said yesterday in a statement that "additional evidence is now disclosed that the campaign managers for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt have adopted the unscrupulous methods of Tammany in attempts to extract contributions to the fund to carry on the Democratic presidential campaign."

"In a series of letters addressed to prominent manufacturers, shipbuilders and others," the statement continued, "these managers, some of whom have had long training under Tammany, informed them of Gov. Roosevelt's great interest in their particular lines of business; how advantageous to them his election would be, and then boldly asked for campaign contributions.

"More than that, however, in many instances, the men who were asked to contribute were assured that if they did so information of the fact would be conveyed to Gov. Roosevelt personally.

Leaders Held Involved.

"Among those to whom such letters were addressed were Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation; Eugene Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and a dozen or more shipbuilders throughout the United States.

"All of the letters were written by A. P. Homer, chairman of the Marine committee of the finance division of the Democratic national campaign committee, Biltmore Hotel, New York City. He is the gentleman who figured so prominently in the sensational correspondence made public yesterday by the Republican national committee, and in which G. A. Eddy, president of the Goss Printing Press Co., Chicago, complained to Gov. Roosevelt of a 'flagrant attempt at political blackmail.'

Letter Is Quoted.

"The letters to Messrs. Schwab and Grace and the heads of the shipbuilding corporations varied somewhat in form, but little in intent and purpose of assuring the recipients of how good it would be for their particular welfare if Mr. Roosevelt became President. The letter to Mr. Schwab, under date of October 17, 1932, read as follows:

"'My dear Mr. Schwab:

"'As a result of the events of the last three weeks, we believe that if the shipbuilders of the United States are to get a square deal, it will be necessary to make a change on November 8. I hope that you are in accord with this idea. If so, we ask that you help us with a contribution to the campaign fund of Gov. Roosevelt, who, as you know, is marine-minded and hasn't the opinion that international affairs can be settled with a blue-print navy. Checks should be made to F. C. Walker, Treasurer, (personal checks, of course) and mailed to him in the inclosed envelope. The writer will personally acknowledge your contribution, and see that the news of it reaches the governor's ears.

"'Thanking you for your cooperation in this matter, I am,

"'Yours very sincerely,

(Signed) "'A. P. HOMER.'

Appeal to Grace.

"There was some variation in the letter to Mr. Grace, which also was dated October 17, 1932, and which follows:

"'Dear Mr. Grace:

"'After what the present incumbent of the White House did to the private shipyards on the destroyer matter, I am sure that you are of the opinion that a change is necessary if the shipbuilders are to get a square deal. As an old member of the shipbuilding fraternity, I am writing to ask for a contribution to the campaign fund of Gov. Roosevelt. Checks should be made to F. C. Walker, Treasurer (personal checks, of course), and mailed in the inclosed envelope promptly. The writer will acknowledge this personally, and see that the knowledge reaches the governor.

"'Thanking you for your cooperation, I am,

"'Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) "'A. P. HOMER.'

"A check-up shows that there seems to have been one form letter to the immediate heads of the shipbuilding firms over the country. In that letter it was stated that 'as a treaty navy is of vital importance to you shipbuilders, they should help elect Gov. Roosevelt by making campaign contributions.'

Recipients Listed.

"Shipbuilders to whom this or a similar letter was addressed included Homer L. Ferguson, president, Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., Newport News, Va.; C. H. Bardo, president, New York Shipbuilding Co., Camden, N. J.; S. W. Wakeman, vice president, Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, Quincy, Mass; W. S. Newell, president Bath Orion Works, Bath, Me.; C. Stewart Lee, vice president, Pusey & Jones Corporation, Wilmington, Del.; J. C. Pew, president, Sun Shipbuilding & Drydock Co., Chester, Pa.; W. W. Smith, chief engineer, Federal Shipbuilding & Drydock Co., Kearney, N. J.; Charles C. West, president, Manitowoc Shipbuilding Corporation, Manitowoc, Wis.; L. Y. Spear, vice president, Electric Boat Co., Groton, Conn.; Joseph W. Powell, president, United Drydock, Inc., New York City; J. Herbert Todd, vice president, Todd Shipyards Corporation, New York City, and D. W. Nevins, General Electric Co., Schenectady, N. Y. (General Electric furnishes turbo electric drive power plants for both warships and merchant craft)."

Roosevelt Reply to Eddy.

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—The Democratic national committee made public today a telegram from Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt to G. A. Eddy, of Chicago, dated October 19, in which the Democratic presidential nominee said a solicitation of campaign funds described by Eddy was "not only not authorized, but (the money) would not have been accepted if received."

Chairman James A. Farley, in making public the telegram, commented that the Republican national committee statement of yesterday quoting an October 17 letter of complaint from Eddy to Roosevelt failed to mention a response by the governor two days later.

The Roosevelt telegram, as announced, read as follows:

"Mr. G. A. Eddy, president,
"Goss Printing Company,
"Chicago, Illinois:
"Any solicitation for me (money) was not only not authorized, but would not have been accepted if received, as I did not believe in such solicitation. As I remember it, the man writing you represented you in Washington at one time and doubtless acted entirely on his own responsibility on account of that fact. I deeply regret that you received such a letter.

Group Asks Aid to Rescue Young From Lives of Crime

Juvenile Protective Association Head Tells How One Boy Was Saved.

Social problems are not alone those of food and shelter. Boys such as this one must be kept off the streets. The Community Chest builds citizens in addition to alleviating poverty.

Declaring that the children of Washington are in need of far more than food and shelter at this time, Miss Mildred Terrett, executive secretary of the Juvenile Protective Association, has brought to the attention of the Community Chest a picture of what might happen to the youth of the city if sufficient funds are not forthcoming for their protection. According to Miss Terrett, there is a grave danger facing the community, about which the average citizen is largely ignorant.

"The duty of this community does not stop with feeding and clothing a child," explained Miss Terrett. "There must be some supervision of the workings of his mind, of his behavior, of his habits, if the child and the community are to be protected from crime. Without such watchful care, there will be a crop of delinquent children rapidly turning into criminals and endangering the social life of the city."

Citing a number of cases recently reported to the association, Miss Terrett said that bad home conditions, some of them the direct results of the poverty and misery caused by the depression, were causing serious behavior problems with many children. And she added that the great purpose of the association was expressed in the one word, "protective."

"We try to find the unfortunate children before they have committed a crime or misdemeanor, before they reach the juvenile court stage. Then our work lies in making adjustments for the children.

"There is no such thing as a hopeless child, or a bad child, under normal, wholesome conditions."

Miss Terrett then told of 8-year-old Harry Lohr, who was a chronic runaway. The child was quiet and well behaved in school, but frequently he would slip out and wander about the city until the early morning hours.

Police were always in search of him but usually the boy eluded them and would come home in a taxicab, refusing to give any account of where he had been.

A case worker at the Juvenile Protective Association began an investigation of Harry and his home environment. In a short time, she discovered that the father and mother of the child were uncongenial and that the mother was having affairs with other men. She tried for months to bring to the parents a sense of their responsibility to the boy, and when this proved impossible, she finally placed Harry in the home of a substantial farmer and his wife.

When they arrived at the farm, Harry's eyes were wide with excitement. In his eight years, he had known no animals save dogs, cats and horses, and the sight of cows, pigs and sheep made him wild with delight.

The farmer and his wife soon became fond of the child and started him in the nearest country school. They were somewhat fearful as to whether or not he might try to run away, but the boy, happy in his new home, stuck steadily to his school work and in a few months' time was on the roll of honor.

"And that is how we spend our funds," concluded Miss Terrett. "Harry, in his runaway adventures, was becoming a sophisticated little gutter rat. He was becoming associated with older men of the worst sort. Had he not been brought under the protective wing of the association, he would probably have graduated into the criminal class by the time he was 9 years old.

"It is to save countless boys like Harry that we are asking funds to carry on. Through the Community Chest, we are asking every one to help us make Washington safe for little children."

BORAH SAYS NATION MUST FEED JOBLESS

Senator Repudiates Theory Hoover Is Responsible for Depression.

Emmett, Idaho, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Senator William E. Borah, Idaho independent Republican, declared in an address here last night "the man who says the present depression was brought on by the present administration doesn't know what he is talking about."

Speaking in a lumber mill town, whose chief industry has been closed much of the time for two years, the Idahoan found himself faced by questioners who raised before him issues of both State and National scope for upward of 20 minutes.

From the floor came a question of "What are you going to do with 12 million unemployed?"

U. S. Must Feed Hungry.

"The Government, until it can restore economic conditions, has got to feed them," he replied.

Answering other questions he said both the home loan bill and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation act were passed in good faith.

"It is my opinion," he addad "that the fault both with home loan bill and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is that they have dealt through banks, insurance companies and railroads, instead of dealing directly with the individual. The individual should not have to go through three or four corporations, in order to deal with his Government."

He assailed the burden of armament, which he placed at $700,000,000 annually in the United States.

For World Disarmament.

"I do not contend the United States can disarm without cooperation of other nations," he said, "but after we have fought the war to end war, and sowed the blood of our brave boys in foreign soil, it is nothing less than mockery that we spend 35 to 40 per cent more for armament than before the war.

He repeated his insistence upon expansion of the currency to take the place of gold he said was hoarded, and declared for an adjustment of mortgages, in accordance with present commodity prices.

Declaring progress had already been made in sentiment toward these problems, he said "there is some compensation for this depression. It is bringing us back to a consideration of the fundamental structure of the society in which we live, and particularly the place of the farm in that structure."

Pumping Station Burns Before Its Dedication

New Lenox, Ill., Oct. 30 (U.P.).—Dedication of the new pumping station was to have been a happy moment for the citizens of New Lenox, who had been carrying water from wells many months.

But before the pumping station pumped a drop of water, it burned to the ground with a loss of $3,000.

Smith Is Planning Campaign Wind-Up

Will Make 3 More Talks for New York Ticket and Roosevelt.

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Alfred E. Smith returned today from a 72-hour campaign tour on behalf of the State and national Democratic tickets grinning and talking of the three more political speeches on his calendar. His only comment as he wound up his first stumping trip since he was a presidential candidate himself was:

"I've said a lot in the last three days and I think I'll just stand on that."

On the train en route to New York the former governor punctuated his breakfast with remarks about his other three speeches—in Troy Wednesday night, in Brooklyn Friday night, and in Madison Square Garden Saturday night. He said he probably would stress national issues in at least the last two, but would make an appeal in all three of them for the election of Herbert H. Lehman, on whose behalf he and Roosevelt fought in the Democratic State convention.

MORTGAGE EASING DRIVE PROGRESSES

Chairman Gives First Report and Says Much Remains to Be Done.

(United Press.)

The campaign to lift the staggering burden of mortgages off the backs of the American people is making progress, but much work remains to be done, Henry M. Robinson, chairman of the central banking and industrial committee, reported yesterday.

It was the first formal report filed by the group of business leaders, who banded together at the suggestion of President Hoover in an attempt to put excess banking credit to work and to stimulate business recovery.

"The mortgage situation," Robinson's report said, "has been receiving particular attention recently. The central committee in Washington has pointed out to the district organizations that deflation has not yet been adequately checked in this field and steps to turn the tide would do much to promote recovery. Most of the district committees have already responded to the call that advisory groups be set up according to the needs of the various localities, to whom distressed farmers and home owners can take their problems for help and advice."

Robinson said the committee on industrial rehabilitation, headed by A. W. Robertson, of Pittsburgh, had concentrated chiefly on helping industrial concerns to replace worn-out equipment. Robertson reported: "The idea is now backed by a small army of people as we now have in every Federal Reserve district . . . A well-organized body of contact men who are covering, or will soon cover, every industrial center."

berland avenue (a wide thoroughfare descending to the Thames embankment) were broken. Iron Grills in front of the Hotel Victoria were closed and a crowd stood jeering and booing liveried servants behind them.

A large automobile, carrying an elderly man and woman, forced its way to the hotel entrance and a mob turned on it, threatening occupants, who were rescued by a detail of police who fought their way through the mob with batons.

It was not until well after dark that the normal appearance was restored to Trafalgar Square vicinity and traffic was able to make way. By that time, the unemployed, escorted by mounted police, had drawn off to the music of fifes and Scottish pipes.

New Economic World.

"President Hoover denies all responsibility," Frankfurter said, "for the plight in which we find ourselves.

"We believe that social well-being is within our control," he added. "But this requires a deep realization that we are living in a new economic world which presents problems that can not be solved by the antiquated formulas of an obsolete society."

The governor sat in a chair at one side of the low-ceilinged room while the delegation crowded about.

"I have never heard the case put better," Mr. Roosevelt said in response. "Throughout the campaign we have made the definite point that our quarrel is not with parties but with the leadership. I am glad that Mr. Frankfurter emphasized social well-being. In New York we have made as an important objective of government social well-being.

"I am confident that the solution of our troubles can be handled by man. Our troubles come not from an obscure cause but from a false idea of government.

Points to Solution.

"The solution will come from men who though they may differ on parties have the same ideas of government. I believe that this cooperation will bring us to a new era.

"As Woodrow Wilson once said, during the days when there are no difficult economic problems, the conservative party is generally apt to remain in control of government because it can then unite in opposition to change. But when serious economic problems arise the average nation turns to liberal or progressive leadership, realizing that new policies have to be adopted to meet new needs.

"This year, as in few previous cases, the people who believe as we do are together. I am confident of the result a week from Tuesday."

The day of the Democratic nominee had at its end a radio speech urging citizens to contribute to funds being raised for relief purposes.

PRESIDENT TONIGHT TALKS IN NEW YORK

Chief Executive before he once more turns westward.

Although details of his plans have yet to be arranged, Mr. Hoover probably will leave the Capital on Thursday for a direct swing to Chicago, and on to Minneapolis, before speaking at Springfield, Ill., and St. Louis.

One of the plans under consideration is to have the President talk in the auditorium in Chicago in which the Republican renomination for the Presidency was given to him. This, however, has not yet been definitely arranged by White House officials and other plans may be decided upon.

California Trip Unlikely.

Some friends of the Chief Executive now are convinced that if he decides finally upon leaving Washington as late as Thursday he will not make a transcontinental trip to California, and his Palo Alto home.

Republican campaign leaders are arranging a protracted broadcast over one of the Nation-wide radio chains on the night of November 7, election eve, and Mr. Hoover has been slated for a major address to be broadcast as part of that program—whether he speaks from Palo Alto or the Executive Mansion here.

Three of the President's secretaries, Walter Newton, Theodore Joslin, and French Strother, remained close at his hand throughout yesterday. Henry M. Robinson, chairman of the central committee of the twelve banking and industrial committees, who is a White House guest, was one of those to confer with the Chief Executive during the day.

Rally Is Set Here For Disarmament

Armistice Day Event Will Coincide With Meetings in 50 Cities.

A large disarmament rally will be held on Armistice Day, November 11, coincident with similar gatherings in 50 other American cities, it was announced yesterday by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, and the League of Nations Association, headed respectively by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler and former Attorney General George W. Wickersham.

The meetings, according to the announcement, are intended to "focus public attention on the world-wide growth of sentiment for disarmament and to muster public opinion for further progress." Dr. James Brown Scott, Frederick A. Delano and Charles Sumner Hamlin, all trustees of the Carnegie Endowment, are arranging for the Washington rally.

HOOVER IS ACCUSED OF TARIFF JUGGLING

Costigan Asserts President Quotes Figures That Hide Real Truth.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, said in a statement yesterday that President Hoover in recent discussions of the tariff had engaged in "statistical juggling," resulting in "a remarkable case of misrepresentation."

The senator, a former member of the Tariff Commission, said the Chief Executive, "doubtless relying on material furnished him by incompetent or reckless advisers, has unfortunately lent his name and the authority of his high office to the deception of the American people."

The statement, issued through the National Progressive League, of which Senator Costigan is vice chairman and which is supporting Gov. Roosevelt, continued:

"In the President's recent speech at Cleveland he declared in substance that the customs duties in the Dingley, McKinley and Paine-Aldrich tariff laws were higher than those in the Smoot-Hawley tariff act of 1930.

Deceit Is Charged.

"The President, in his Cleveland and Indianapolis addresses, referred to percentages on what he called the whole of our imports. It is evident that Mr. Hoover's statement deliberately disregarded rates of duty and used percentages based on all our imports, which necessarily included goods admitted free of duty.

"By this misleading method Mr. Hoover made the level of all customs duties seem low, whreas the actual rates are extraordinarily high.

"Whether or not the President so intended, this feature of his discussion of the tariff presents a remarkable case of misrepresentation. President Hoover's advisers should have saved him from such gross inaccuracies. * * *

"Some of our imports are admitted free, and some are dutiable. If one takes the total value of all goods imported, both free and dutiable, and divides this figure into the total duties collected, he gets a certain average quivalent ad valorem duty.

How It Works Out.

"Suppose, that the tariff rates on the dutiable portion of the imports are so increased that the total imports of such goods and the customs revenues collected from them, are cut in half.

"In that case, though the duties have actually been increased and more goods have been shut out of the country, a larger per cent of the imports that do come in will be free, and the average equivalent ad valorem duty will be lower, than was the case before. * * *

"According to Mr. Hoover's use of figures, * * * the higher a tariff actually is, the lower it is made to appear. * * *"

BRIDGE RULES ANNOUNCED

I suggested, in the issue of the Bridge World magazine, of October, 1929, that "there is a splendid opportunity for the English and American committees to bury their differences in drafting a code of laws that would be the standard for the entire English-speaking world."

This suggestion met with a ready response from the laws committee of the Whist and Portland Clubs, and later the Commission Francaise du Bridge, an organization representing the French bridge players, joined the movement. To aid them in representing the wishes of American bridge players, the Whist Club named an American cooperating committee, of which I have the honor of being chairman.

It was not easy to reach an international agreement on the code of laws of contract bridge. Of necessity there was a great deal of give and take, but the code, as a whole, is a splendid example of well thought out legislation equally fair to an American, Englishman, Frenchman or a Chinese.

Sections of Code.

Many beginners in bridge are apt to confuse the laws and rules of contract bridge with methods and systems of contract bridge. The laws and rules of contract bridge deal only with the formal procedure and scoring of the game; the methods and systems deal with the question of how a hand should be bid and played. The question of methods has never been the province of any law giving body. It is the business of writers, master players, bridge teachers and millions of self-appointed theorists of this fascinating game.

The international code consists of three broad sections:

1. Ethics.
2. Laws and rules.
3. Scoring table.

Ethics—The code of ethics has been rewritten, clarified and enlarged. The spirit of the code is expressed in the statement that the laws are not designed to prevent dishonorable practices, for which the only remedy is ostracism. There is little doubt that ethics of a mere game like contract bridge are far superior to those governing business.

Laws and Rules.

Laws and rules—The form of the code has been entirely changed. The first section contains a number of new definitions of terms used in bridge, among them being the following:

Rotation—The order of succession of the game, which is from player to player to the left, in the direction taken by the hands of a watch.

Call—A comprehensive term applicable to a bid, a double, a redouble or a pass.

Denomination—The suit or no-trump named in a bid.

Bid—A call by which a player offers to contract that his side will win at least as many odd tricks (one to seven), as his bid specifies, provided the hand is played in the denomination he names.

Quitted trick—A trick which has been gathered and turned by a player on the side which has won it and from which the hand of the player has been removed.

It is pointed out that the laws are designed to define correct procedure and to provide an adequate remedy in all cases where a player accidentally, carelessly or inadvertently disturbs the proper course of the game or gains an unintentional but nevertheless unfair advantage. While in most instances the penalties are moderated to a minimum consistent with justice, there are a few cases where they appear a little bit bloodthirsty. For instance, the penalty for a pass out of turn is a new deal, as is the penalty for a player's picking up his cards while the deal is in progress.

Changes in Scoring.

Scoring—Bridge players generally will be much interested in the changes relative to scoring. There has been an insistent demand for an increase in the undoubled not vulnerable penalty to simplify the scoring and to curb the wave of so-called psychic or bluff bidding. The joint committee after full consideration, for the present refused to yield to this demand. There was, however, a change made in the doubled penalties for undertricks, both vulnerable and not vulnerable. Hereafter the undertrick penalty for the trick doubled, not vulnerable is 100 points; for the second trick 150 points; for the third trick 200 points; and for the fourth trick 250 points and so on, in arithmetical progression of 50 points for each added undertrick. The penalty, if the player is vulnerable, is exactly doubled in each case.

A rather complicated provision has been made in the scoring of no-trump tricks below the line. The new law provides that first, third, fifth and seventh tricks at no-trump shall have the value of 30 points each, while the second, fourth and sixth shall have a value of 40 points each. I do not know how other minds work but this business of odd and even for no-trumps will surely overburden my poor head. It seems to me the quickest way out is to toss up a coin after each no-trump. According to the doctrine of chances it will prove to be equally scientific. It will be noted that three no-trump will still score game, but its value is 100 and not 105 points, as heretofore.

This is, of course, a concession to Howell match-point scoring, being an effort to equalize the value of no-trump and a minor suit game. Another change which no doubt had its origin in duplicate scoring is that the value of an overtrick no longer remains at 30 points, but has the same value as the trick scored below the line. Thus, if you bid one diamond and make three diamonds, you now score 20 below the line and 40 above, instead of, as under the old laws, 20 below the line and 100 above. There'll be a loud wail from the chronic underbidders.

Effect on Systems.

The new scoring has many points in its favor, but many players will object that it is too difficult to remember and compute. For my own part I feel sorry for the hundreds of thousands of women who, with the old scoring, got along quite well with a count on ten fingers, but who now, with the new scoring, may find it necessary to remove their shoes to count on their toes as well.

To what extent will this new scoring table affect the methods of bidding and play in various systems, and particularly in the Culbertson system?

There are not enough differences between both scorings to warrant any radical change in the methods of bidding and play used, although a number of minor adaptations will be required. For instance, in the Culbertson system a grand slam bid was excluded except with the rarest lay-down hands, because the premium of 1,000 points not vulnerable and 1,500 points vulnerable could seldom justify the gamble. With the new grand slam premiums of 1,500 points not vulnerable and 2,250 points vulnerable, respectively, grand slam bids should be bid more often. I can confidently predict an epidemic of grand slam bids that will break out like a malignant rash throughout the country, and my advice is to step up the grand slam bidding ever so slightly, for in the long run it will prove to be a losing bid.

Under the old scoring a two-trick set to stop a part-score by opponents was punished by 200 points, which is, in most cases, a justifiable sacrifice. Under the new scoring, a penalty of two tricks doubled, not vulnerable, is 250 points, which is a bit too much. Consequently, overbidding to stop part-score should be tightened up.

Influence on Defense.

The new scoring will have a considerable influence on defense bidding, especially in preemptive or shutout bids, but an overbid by three tricks not vulnerable to prevent opponents from scoring a game is still worth while in spite of the fact that the loss will now be 450 points instead of 400 points, as in the old scoring. There are several other minor adaptations in the Culbertson method of bidding which have already been made to meet the new scoring conditions. All in all, however, no radical changes will be required.

The code may not be perfect, but, whether perfect or not, it is a step in the right direction and brings measurably nearer the goal which I suggested three years ago and, as chairman of the American cooperating committee, I am glad to see the consummation of a much-desired end. The laws of bridge are important. The game of bridge is the favorite pastime of the world. It will be made even more popular if we have one universal code, applicable whether we are playing bridge in Manhattan, in Wichita, in London, in Paris, or in Shanghai.

And the joint committees ought to be highly commended for presenting to the public a code of laws for gentlemen, made by gentlemen.

Penalties for not vulnerable doubled undertricks increase 50 per trick. To determine the penalty for a particular undertrick add one to the number of the trick and multiply by 50. For instance, the penalty for the sixth undertrick doubled and not vulnerable would be 350, or 50 times (6 plus 1), and the total penalty for six undertricks would be 1,350. Doubled not vulnerable penalties are the same as undouble vulnerable penalties. Redoubled penalties are twice doubled penalties.

Overtricks:
Undoubled, not vulnerable or vulnerable, same as suit value. That is, one who contracted for three hearts and made four would score 90 below the line and 30 above.

Each overtrick:

TWO DEAD AND SCORE INJURED IN SERIES OF AUTO ACCIDENTS

police at Waldorf, Md., say he was under the influence of intoxicants and would be arrested after his recovery at Emergency Hospital here.

Mrs. Gladys McMillen, 32, of 625 Columbia road northwest, and Mrs. Lillian Carroll, 18 Quincy place northwest, other occupants of Bain's car, are also in Emergency Hospital. The former suffered a fractured hip, body lacerations and internal injuries, while the latter suffered several fractured ribs, possible internal injuries and body bruises. Bain's jaw was fractured and his body bruised.

The occupants of the other car, into which State police said Bain's machine swerved, were taken to Freedmen's Hospital here, and were all colored persons. They were the Berry child; his sister, Vivian, 5, and their mother, Lizzie Berry, all of Baxby; William Thomas, 33, of Rison; Bernadine Thompson, 34, of Pisgah, and Louis Johnson, 32, of Indianhead. All except the Berry child were reported to be recovering.

Mrs. Totten's husband, police said, probably escaped injury or death when he elected to remain at Indianhead, where the group in Bain's car had been attending a party, after a tiff with other members of the group. He identified his wife's body.

Acting Coroner L. A. Dethierry, of Glymont, has ordered an inquest, but it will be deferred pending outcome of the condition of the accident victims.

En Route to Capital.

The Bain car was en route to Washington, about 2 miles from Indianhead, and near Glymont, when the accident occurred, while the other car was bound in the opposite direction toward a nearby church. Passing motorists and police brought about removal of the victims to Indianhead.

A private ambulance, bringing a patient from West Virginia to Walter Reed Hospital, was forced to stop and convey four other persons to the city, when the ambulance struck an automobile on the Lee-Jackson highway near Chantilly, Va., yesterday, turning it over several times and injuring the passengers.

Suffers Fractured Skull.

Miss Bertha Gillilan, 56, of 1830 Lamont street northwest, suffered a fractured skull. Her condition is said to be serious. The others in the car, all of whom were treated at Garfield Hospital, were not seriously injured. They were Wayne Bradley, 46, driver of the car; Mrs. Clara Bradley and Miss Aimee Bradley, all of Chevy Chase, Md. Two children who were in the car escaped injury.

According to Fairfax County police, the ambulance sideswiped the Bradley car, while both were driving toward Washington. Police were unable to learn the name of the driver of the ambulance. They are investigating the collision.

Couple Seriously Hurt.

A young Chevy Chase, Md., couple were seriously injured yesterday afternoon when the automobile in which they were riding collided with another car on the Defense highway near the District line.

J. Stewart Boyce, 21 years old, and his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Boyce, 23 years old, of 21 Hesketh street, Chevy Chase, Md., were brought to Emergency Hospital. Mr. Boyce suffered a fractured jaw and severe lacerations and bruises. Mrs. Boyce received a possible fracture of the skull and body injuries.

Is Killed by Truck.

Lorenzo G. Warfield, 75, of 1214 Massachusetts avenue northwest, who was struck by a truck operated by Jonnny Thurston, 31, colored, of 1704 Vermont avenue northwest, at Eleventh and Harvard streets northwest on October 17, died yesterday at Garfield Hospital as the result of his injuries.

Thurston was released in the custody of his attorney for the action of the coroner.

Miss Edna B. Garfield, 53, of the Clifton Terrace Apartments, Thirteenth and Clifton streets northwest, suffered a fractured right wrist yesterday, when the automobile she was driving crashed into a light pole on the Dumbarton Bridge. She was treated at Georgetown Hospital.

Railman to Die for Wreck.

Moscow, Oct. 30 (U.P.).—A station master whose negligence caused a train wreck two weeks ago was sentenced to death today by the Soviet government. Three other persons, held responsible for the wreck, in which 36 were killed and 51 injured, were given prison terms.

JOHN M'GRAIN DIES; EMPLOYE OF CAPITOL

Deputy Sergeant at Arms of Senate Expires After Operation.

John J. McGrain, 60 years old, deputy sergeant at arms and purchasing agent of the United States Senate and connected with the Senate for nearly 40 years, died at noon yesterday at the United States Naval Hospital.

Mr. McGrain's death followed an illness of two weeks, but his condition was not considered grave until he weakened after an operation two days ago.

Mr. McGrain came to Washington from Corydon, Ind., 39 years ago and was employed at the Capitol during a Democratic administration, being himself a Democrat. He won quick promotion and proved himself so efficient and popular that he was placed on the exempt roll, his reappointment becoming automatic with the change of each administration.

Mr. McGrain had served as deputy sergeant at arms under David S. Barry, the present sergeant at arms, for the past fourteen years. He frequently acted as sergeant at arms during Mr. Barry's absence. His businesslike methods and efficiency saved the Government large sums of money, his friends and associates said. He had charge of the purchase of furniture and all other materials used in the Senate.

The survivors are the widow, and three sons, Frank, Thomas and John J. McGrain, jr., and two daughters, Mrs. George Parks and Miss Margaret McGrain, all of Washington. The McGrain family reside at 1368 Euclid street northwest. Funeral services are being planned for tomorrow. The Rev. Z. B. Phillips, chaplain of the Senate, will officiate.

HAROLD MACGRATH'S DEATH HALTS NOVEL

Veteran Author Succumbs to Heart Ailment as He Works on Manuscript.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Harold MacGrath, novelist, collapsed at his desk while working on his latest novel early today, and died in his wife's arms. He was 61.

The veteran writer of romances and mystery stories had half completed what would have been the latest addition to a long series of his novels, among them "The Man on the Box," "Arms and the Woman" and "The Other Passport," which was published last year.

Shortly after midnight his wife heard him call out from the study overlooking a garden in which they had worked together. She found MacGrath collapsed over his manuscript. He died a few minutes later.

Was Newspaper Reporter.

MacGrath began writing at the age of 19 when he became a newspaper reporter on the Syracuse Herald. While on the Herald he wrote "Arms and the Woman," his first novel, in 1899, and followed this with "The Puppet Crown" and "The Man on the Box."

The latter book, he said, made him famous overnight, and he awoke one morning to find placards with "my name on every ash can under all the elevated platforms in Greater New York."

George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post, had called MacGrath "one of the first ten writing men in the United States."

Weighing slightly more than 100 pounds, MacGrath was known affectionately to his friends as "Skinny." His death was caused by heart illness.

Gave Credit to Wife.

He married Alma Kenyon, of Syracuse, to whom he gave much credit for the great quantity of work he was able to turn out. He traveled over the world and wove into his novels many of his personal experiences.

MacGrath was the author of "The Perils of Pauline," the early motion picture serial thriller in which Pearl White played.

He preferred to write his manuscripts by hand rather than on the typewriter. The subject of the novel he was writing when he died was not known.

He was a traveler and fisherman, and owned a villa on Lake Como, Italy, where he spent his summers. He enjoyed fishing the St. Lawrence River with Irvin S. Cobb, and on these trips wore his "lucky vest," a red-and-brown striped garment without which, tradition said, fish refused to bite for him.

Isadore L. Kahn, Optician, Is Dead

Brief Illness Proves Fatal to Head of Firm Here; Funeral Today.

Isadore L. Kahn, head of the Kahn Optical Co., 617 Seventh street northwest, died last night at his home, 5709 Sixteenth street northwest, following a brief illness. He was 52 years old.

Mr. Kahn had been a resident of Washington for 37 years. He attended Business High School, and organized the firm which bears his name about ten years ago. Prominent in Masonic circles, Mr. Kahn was a member of the Chevy Chase Lodge of Scottish Rite Masons. He also held membership in the Washington Chamber of Commerce.

Surviving Mr. Kahn are his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Kahn, two daughters, Lillian and Charlotte Kahn, two sons, Joseph and Franklin Kahn, and a brother, Adolph Kahn, all of this city. Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the residence. Interment will be in the Washington Hebrew Cemetery.

EMPLOYMENT GAIN SHOWN FOR MONTH

Many Textile Workers and Miners Are Included in October List.

(United Press.)

A general increase in employment in the United States in October was reported yesterday by the Labor Department.

Secretary Doak made public a survey of the U. S. Employment Service, showing an upward trend in employment in manufacturing establishments, textile industries, boot and shoe factories, coal mines, railroad shops, rayon mills and agricultural industries.

Only in the iron and steel industry was there no material improvement, according to the report. However, it was said "a turn for the better was noted" in this field at the end of September.

"Under the stimulus of funds made available by the emergency relief and construction act," the report said, "there was a considerable increase in the volume of highway and bridge construction, which provided employment for thousands of additional men."

More Contracts Let.

Thirty-three States reported they had more than 260,000 men engaged on this type of work, and numerous additional contracts were let during the month.

Private and commercial building was reported to have remained at a low level.

"The textile industry, which has been steadily improving its position during the past six weeks provided employment for many hundreds of additional workers," the report said, "while the mills producing rayon, woolen goods, silk products, hosiery and men's and women's clothing stepped up production schedules, and departmental overtime was reported in a number of instances."

Miners Are Recalled.

Several thousand miners were recalled to work last month when improved conditions in that industry permitted the reopening of a number of mines that had been closed for months.

"Satisfactory operations prevailed in most of the leather boot and shoe factories, and in a few localities these establishments increased their forces," the report said.

Shipbuilding yards gave employment to "large numbers" of mechanics, and employment improved in the harvesting of fall crops and activities in the fruit and vegetable packing houses.

Senator Hofstadter Denies Ballot Deal

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—State Senator Samuel H. Hofstadter, in his first statement since he was nominated for Supreme Court Justice, by both the Republican and Democratic organizations a month ago, denied tonight that he or any one in his behalf, "entered into any deal, bargain or agreement."

The bipartisan nominations of Hofstadter and Aron Steuer have been criticized by civic organizations and bar associations, as a "deal" between Tammany Hall and the Republican organization. Independent candidates were placed in the field. Hofstadter is a Republican and Steuer is the son of one of Tammany's chiefs.

Samuel Insull Plays Golf at Greek Links

Athens, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Samuel Insull, former head of the Insull utilities system, played golf today at a club a short distance from Athens. He had been invited there by club members. A private detective accompanied him.

Cristos Ladas, his attorney, said the question of extraditing Mr. Insull, to face an indictment in Chicago for grand larceny and embezzlement, must first be judged by the Hellenic court of justice in accordance with Greece's extradition treaty with the United States. Extradition may be obtained, the lawyer said, only with the consent of the court.

Accused Educator Is Discharged.

Redondo Beach, Calif., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Elliot B. Thomas, Redondo Beach school superintendent, who recently fabricated an elaborate hoax to disappear and marry a Seattle girl, and is now accused of stealing $8,000 from the school district, was formally discharged at a meeting of the school board last night.

Detroit Lake District Reports Cool Weather

Detroit, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Michigan was experiencing chilly but serene weather today, as an anticlimax to high winds, that swept the State for two days, bringing snow or rain to virtually all sections and driving ships to shelter in the Great Lakes.

Much of the upper Peninsula wore a snow blanket, Calumet reporting a 12-inch snowfall. Below the straits, temperatures for the most part stayed above the freezing point.

NEW GROUP STARTS 'BUY-IN-U.S.' DRIVE

Reopening of Idle Plants and Employment Increase Chief Objectives.

The reopening of idle manufacturing plants and the employment of idle workers are the first and primary objectives of "Buy Uncle Sam's, Inc.," it was announced yesterday.

In opening its Nation-wide "Buy Uncle Sam's" campaign, the organization, which was recently incorporated in the District, declared that business revival will inevitably follow if the people of the United States join whole-heartedly in putting over its program.

It is announced that "Buy Uncle Sam's, Inc.," is not "just another new organization." It does not solicit memberships. It is a cooperative organization.

To Promote Legislation.

"Buy Uncle Sam's, Inc.," will promote constructive legislation during the next session of Congress, together with an educational program to awaken the Nation to the importance of buying its own products.

In advancing its program, the organization will form a committee of one hundred from afflicted industries, including agriculture, for the purpose of consolidating efforts now being made individually by the various industries.

Through its campaign it hopes to awaken the public to the fact that their interests lie in protecting and expanding the home market, which now absorbs 90 per cent of the Nation's production.

Buttons to Be Given Out.

Persons in various walks of life will be enlisted in the campaign. Pins, buttons, slogans, posters, flags and labels will be used. The country will be appealed to through all media.

The campaign will be directed by the "Buy Uncle Sam's, Inc.," committee, with headquarters at 1010 Vermont avenue northwest.

Nathan Boone Williams, of Washington, is general counsel, and George L. Maryland, jr., of Philadelphia, treasurer. Both men are experienced industrialists.

Mme. Halstead Joins Metropolitan.

New York, Oct. 30. (U.P.).—Mme. Magaret Halstead, dramatic soprano, has been engaged by the Metropolitan Opera for the coming season, it was announced today by Giulio Gatti-Casazza, general manager. She was born in Pittsfield, Mass., granddaughter of the late Murat Halstead, editor. She studied singing in Austria and this country, making her debut at the Cologne Opera House in 1931.

FOX HUNTERS OPEN MARYLAND TRIALS

Twelfth Chase Futurity on Three Successive Days to Be Feature.

Foxhounds and horses from all parts of the country were to race across the Maryland countryside at daybreak today when the first cast was made at Rockville in the thirty-ninth annual field trials of the National Foxhunters Association.

The hound and horse show will continue all this week. A feature of the show will be the twelfth chase futurity, to be run on three successive mornings, for a purse of $1,000 and other trophies.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday mornings will be devoted to the running of the thirty-ninth all-age stake of the National Association. Any hound of any age is eligible to run in this event for the $500 purse and trophies. The winner of the highest general average will be proclaimed the 1932 national field trial champion.

The horse show will be held at the Rockville fair grounds tomorrow afternoon. Some of the finest hunters in the section will compete in the eight events planned. The annual hunt ball will be held tomorrow night at Wardman Park Hotel.

The annual business meeting of the association will be held at 8:30 p. m. Thursday at Wardman Park Hotel. The bench show for foxhounds will be held in the exhibition room of the hotel at 8 p. m. Friday.

More foxhounds are said to have been entered in the twelfth chase futurity this year than ever before. The chase futurity is for young foxhounds which were whelped between January 1 and November 1, 1931, whose sires and dams were nominated May 1, 1932.

Bankers to Oppose U.S. Charters for All Firms

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—The economic policy commission of the American Bankers Association today announced that it was opposed to a proposal to force all commercial banks to operate under Federal charter.

Improvement in banking conditions, the report states, can be attained without sacrificing "the dual banking system of optional State and national charters, which stands as just as great a defense against undue central Government control over the financial liberties of our people, as the dual system of State and Federal governmental jurisdiction does in respect to their political liberties."

BODY OF HIJACKER VICTIM IDENTIFIED

Man Was Baltimore Gangster, Montgomery Policeman Declares.

The body of a man, who died at Emergency Hospital Saturday night as the result of wounds suffered in a purported hijacking feud near Ellicott City, Md., Friday, was identified yesterday as that of Elmer Bleinberger, Baltimore gangster, by Theodore Vollten, of the Montgomery County Police, who said he once arrested the man.

An autopsy was performed on Bleinberger's body yesterday at the District Morgue by Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy, at the request of Maryland authorities. A .38-caliber steel-jacketed bullet was extracted from the man's abdomen, and will be given to the nearby authorities today.

Police here were never able to obtain a coherent story from Bleinberger as to the battle, but Baltimore police are understood to have said that his identification as connected with the underworld of that city would give them a strong lead as to his assailants.

Several .32 and .38 caliber bullets and shells were found at the scene of the gun battle and these are expected to be compared with the bullet in Bleinberger's body with a view to tracing their ownership.

A bakery truck driver, Asa A. Anderson who saw several of the feudists Friday, today will view pictures of known Baltimore criminals in the Baltimore Bertillon bureau.

REICH LEADER BACKS FRENCH PROPOSAL

the future—and here frankly I do not see on what basis an international regulation thereof can be effected."

Pressed for an explanation of what he meant by drawbacks, Gen. Groener said: "It isn't easy to adapt the militia idea to geographical conditions of each country. In the case of the United States and England the problem is relatively simple as these two countries have oceans as natural frontier protections, although even in the case of the United States the possibility of conflict with Japan raises certain difficulties and in the case of England her proximity to France raises a problem.

France's Protections.

"In the case of France the militia system can easily be adopted as she has both ocean and mountains for frontier protections and has filled the gap left by nature by constructing a girdle of forts between Strassburg and Luxemburg. It follows that Germany having no such favorable natural frontiers would have to be permitted to erect forts of purely defensive character wherever necessary."

Regarding Herriot's idea for an international military control commission, the former defense minister said Germany's experience with the Interallied commission was not a happy one.

"If, however, such an international commission is one wherein delegates from different countries frankly exchange views much as the governors of central banks, who meet at Basel, then much good might come from this system. It all depends upon the spirit animating such a commission."

Press Sees Danger.

Paris, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—French Nationalists awakened today to the realization that Premier Herriot's new disarmament plan would restore to Germany the right to create a conscript army similar to that of France and, in principle, would put all the nations of Europe on a uniform basis, as before the war.

The Nationalist press saw danger in this momentous modification of the Treaty of Versailles. Joseph Paul-Boncour, minister of war, is seeking to minimize apprehension by explaining that only when the French plan has been adopted in its entirety will the French army be reorganized, and not until then will France negotiate a reduction in her homeland forces in keeping with Article 8 of the covenant of the League of Nations, which calls for reduction, but only to a point consistent with national safety.

Would Be Unaffected.

M. Paul-Boncour also emphasized that the colonial army of France would be unaffected.

It was learned on good authority that the French plan, the outstanding point of which is the substitution of short-term conscript forces for professional armies throughout Europe, embodies some of the principles of the defunct Geneva protocol of 1924.

This protocol branded as an aggressor any nation which refused to arbitrate. The plan also was authoritatively reported as continuing recognition of the League of Nations as the judge of what constitutes aggression.

Koo Says Manchuria Key to Peace.

Paris, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese minister to France, said in a radio broadcast to the United States today, that if the Manchurian problem is not soon settled in accordance with the principle of the territorial and political integrity of China, there can be no prosperity in the region of the Pacific, nor any hope of permanent peace throughout the world.

Cement Plant Opens Saturday.

New Castle, Pa., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Officials of the New Castle plant of the Lehigh Portland Cement Co. announced today the plant would reopen temporarily Saturday, with 200 men employed. They said surplus stock had been exhausted and production would last as long as needed. The factory closed several months ago.

FRANCE FOR ARMS CUT, HERRIOT SAYS

Poitiers, France, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Premier Edouard Herriot, addressing radical Socialist party colleagues during a stopover here today on his way to Spain, declared France favors "wide measures of disarmament," with new guarantees of security.

"We will not touch our present security as long as it is not replaced, or even enhanced by new guarantees," he asserted. The disarmament conference will resume next month, he said, "at a critical point."

Concerning French trade, the premier said: "The nation must, at the same time, defend internal production and preserve foreign markets, but it must take defensive measures in view of abnormal protectionism too often directed against France."

M. Herriot took cognizance of unfavorable reports concerning the motive of his journey to Spain, by saying "prejudice, bad faith and ignorance have attempted to distort an act whose only worth is its sincerity." He said when he reached Madrid tomorrow he would bear witness of France's friendship "for a great Spanish nation."

He entrained this afternoon for the border, where he will be met at Irun by Spanish officials. He will arrive in Madrid in the morning.

23 Out of 1,000 in U. S. Are College Graduates

(Associated Press.)

Out of every 1,000 adult Americans that you pass on the street, 23 are college graduates and 125 have finished high school.

These were among figures presented yesterday by the Federal Office of Education.

Other observations included:

The chances of a boy or girl going to high school, which were only one in 25 in 1890, are now one in two.

The chances of a boy or girl going to college, which were only one in thirty-three in 1900, are now one in six.

Utah Firms Using Vote Pressure, King Charges

Salt Lake City, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Senator William H. King, of Utah, Democrat, charges that "several Utah corporations are brazenly and openly seeking to compel their employes to vote the Republican ticket."

"In Utah," the junior senator said in addressing a Democratic rally last night, "we have a law making such campaign tactics illegal and that law will be invoked unless the practice is discontinued."

DETROIT GANGSTER IS KILLED IN HOTEL

"You Double-Crossed Me," One of Two Assailants Is Quoted as Saying.

Detroit, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Two gunmen who fled in a sedan bearing Illinois license plates were sought by police today as the perpetrators of Detroit's first gang slaying in more than three months.

The victim was identified as Mack Cohen, 31, described by police as a petty hijacker who started his underworld career as a small-time racketeer in Chicago several years ago.

He was shot to death early today by two unidentified companions as he was registering at a small downtown hotel. His assailants ran from the hotel as he slumped to the lobby floor, four bullet wounds in his chest.

Harry Graham, night clerk at the hotel, said the three entered together and asked for a room. As he turned for the room directory, he said he heard their voices raised in argument and the shots followed. He quoted one on the men as saying, "You double-crossed me." Cohen was identified by his fingerprints.

Police sought to establish a link between Cohen's death and the killing of Ben Bronson, said by them to have been a partner of Cohen during his Chicago days. Bronson's body was found in a gutter here on June 21, 1931. He had been shot to death. Cohen was arrested for questioning in that case, then released.

Police said Cohen, also known as Max Raemer, had been arrested fifteen times, twice for kidnaping and five times for robbery, but is known to have served time only once.

X marks the shop and tomorrow marks our 25th Anniversary

We're a marked shop; have been for 25 years! Back in 1907, the name Erlebacher was synonymous with QUALITY . . . and today that tradition of QUALITY is being guarded more zealously than ever.

We've weathered the storms of good times and bad, we've worked for 25 years with QUALITY clothes, we've been responsible for enough important fashions in our career to make us feel pretty sure of ourselves . . . and we present our NOVEMBER collections at unusual Anniversary prices with pleasant confidence.

has the pleasure of announcing the addition to its quality line of

HUDSON-ESSEX

Effective November First we become the Distributor of Hudson-Essex in the Washington Territory

TODAY we have the privilege of announcing a very significant forward step in the ten years' successful development of Packard Washington.

It is a step which we confidently believe will exert a beneficial influence on a large and growing body of motorists and on the progress of this Company.

With this announcement Packard Washington, in addition to maintaining its position as a national—even international—factor in the distribution of Packard cars, also becomes the distributor of Hudson-Essex cars in this territory for the Hudson Motor Car Company.

THIS brings to Packard Washington the opportunity to extend to a substantial family of Thirteen Thousand Five Hundred Hudson-Essex owners in the city and vicinity the full measure of that quality service to owner interest which has enabled this Company to win and to hold the largest fine-car clientele in Washington.

Further, it enables an expansion of our appeal to the needs and demands of present and prospective owners seeking the satisfaction of high quality and fine performance in cars of moderate to lowest price range.

From no other single manufacturing source could come benefits comparable to these acquired through this association with Hudson Motor Car Company, the builder of those precision made, strikingly styled and brilliantly performing leaders of their fields, the Pacemaker Hudson Eight, the Pacemaker Essex Super-Six, and that newest type, different kind of car recently introduced, the TERRAPLANE.

This union of Packard Washington and Hudson-Essex permits us to provide for every motor car requirement, from as low as Four Hundred Twenty-five Dollars (factory) to the Ten Thousand Dollar individually custom-built creation, thus enabling us to gratifyingly fulfill the requirements of every price range.

A satisfying element in this is that every car in this entire line at whatever investment you desire is one of quality kinship with the finest and best surrounding it.

HUDSON MOTOR CAR COMPANY
DETROIT, MICH., U.S.A.

October 28th, 1932.

Mr. Oscar Coolidge, President,
Packard-Washington Motor Car Co.,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Oscar:

You and we have good reason for mutual congratulation today. Let me extend ours to you, most cordially.

This union of Packard-Washington, Hudson and Essex, brings into active association names that for years have stood for kindred ideals in quality-production, value leadership, and responsible service to the community. Together they represent a complete appeal to all that the most exacting could require in satisfied motor car ownership.

From long personal acquaintance with the principles and methods that have made your Company a conspicuous success, I know that we are committing the motoring interests and needs of our present and future Washington Hudson-Essex family into fair, generous and capable hands. I am exceedingly happy that you and your splendid organization are to serve them.

Sincerely yours,

President

WJHeal38

ALONG with this sincere expression of pleasure at being appointed to serve the present and future Hudson-Essex owner family, we specifically call attention to the complete facilities which we now have ready in separate Hudson-Essex service quarters at 2320 17th Street—the Southwest corner of Kalorama Road.

Here is complete provision for the prompt and courteous servicing of Hudson-Essex cars, including our long-established call-for-and-deliver method—a corps of factory-trained mechanics and inspectors—every modern facility to properly service Hudson-Essex at costs even below present-day anticipation.

Concerning these remarkable cars: The personnel of our organization, trained through the years in quality, beauty and the zenith of performance, found in exhaustive tests of Hudson, Essex and Terraplane, qualities and performances beyond their most hopeful expectations and at prices unbelievably low.

We are deeply appreciative of this unusual opportunity to devote to the present and prospective car owners of this community a sales and service organization and equipment with an already established reputation unexcelled for quality and sincerity. We wish to extend to all who visit our service station and our salesrooms a most cordial welcome.

President

STRAW VOTES.

Pre-election polls are being taken all over the country this year, and the promoters are boldly advertising them as accurate forecasts of the election next week. It is easy to place too much credence in these straw votes, which at best reach only a small percentage of the people who will register their choice at the polls.

In past years some straw votes have been remarkably accurate in presaging public sentiment. Others have been very inaccurate. Usually a fair indication of how the election will turn can be obtained in normal years. But this year is abnormal in many respects. Every one of the presidential polls is weighted down with protest votes. That is to be expected. The man with a grudge will usually register it in any way possible. The voter who intends to follow his partisan inclinations is not so anxious to register a preference that doesn't mean anything. In considering the Literary Digest poll, for example, it is well to remember that upwards of 20,000,000 straw votes were solicited and less than 3,000,000 voters have responded. What do the silent 17,000,000 think?

Furthermore, some of the polls tend to cancel the results of others. It is interesting to note that Gov. Roosevelt has won the hearts of high school boys and girls by a considerable majority, while President Hoover has a tremendous majority in the colleges. In the eastern universities the President had three votes to the governor's one. The Socialist vote was about equal to that cast for Gov. Roosevelt.

One of the major polls gives President Hoover such States as New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Maine, Kansas and Colorado. Another straw vote gives Roosevelt a plurality of 32,000 in Pennsylvania, and shows him to be leading also in New York, Ohio, Kansas and Colorado. Which poll should be followed? These notable variations suggest that all the polls may be wrong.

The fact that a tremendous majority of the straw ballots find their way into waste-baskets indicates that most of the voters are not disgruntled. They see no reason why they should register their preference in advance. Others, who are undecided, prefer to wait until all the evidence is in before reaching a verdict.

This factor substantially brightens the prospects of a Republican victory. Virtually all of the political observers agree that there has been a swing to President Hoover since he began campaigning actively. His straight-forward talk on the tariff has caused millions of farmers and workingmen to think seriously about the Democratic threat of a change. Wherever he goes President Hoover is received with tremendous enthusiasm which has not been reflected either in the straw votes or in the calculations of political wiseacres.

What happens in the next week may swing the election one way or the other. There is no warrant for assuming that either side has won up to date.

A WASHINGTON FETE.

With something of a Parisian touch the National Capital makes the celebration of Halloween a festival peculiarly its own. The anniversary is the signal throughout the land for boyish pranks and minor depredations generally condoned as privileges pertaining to the occasion. The usual village trick was to carry off all the gates that could be loosened from their hinges, while the prize stunt was to dismember a buggy and reassemble it on top of the court house. Since front lawns are now all turned loose as a matter of civic pride and automobiles weigh more than a ton, styles in Halloween frolic have perforce changed.

Washington's celebration of October 31, however, is by no means limited to these childish tricks. The Capital doffs its dignity for the evening to participate in a festive show, not merely a rowdy masquerade, but an evening carnival with parades, music, gaudy costumes and much dancing. The entertainment this year promises to be of unusual interest and gayety. More than 100 entries have been received for competition in the numerous prize events. There will be brilliant floats and various organizations participating in the procession that will pass up Pennsylvania and Constitution Avenues led by Maj. Gen. Anton Stephan. Later the broad expanse of Constitution Avenue between Fifteenth and Sixteenth Streets will be closed off and reserved for dancing.

Halloween, or All Hallows Eve, while now celebrated in many places as a festival preliminary to All Saints' Day, in reality long antedates Christianity. In ancient times it was characterized by the lighting of bonfires and the belief that it was the one night of the year when ghosts and witches were most likely to be seen. The celebration was started by the Druids, but became mixed with the Roman festival of Pomona in which nuts and fruits, representing the winter stores, played a prominent part. With peculiar persistence the old-time games and associations of Halloween are still seen in the less formal observances of the anniversary today.

TARIFF ON CATTLE.

When former Senator Reed, of Missouri, gets hold of a hot iron he doesn't know when to let go. The vituperative Missourian is trying to explain away the difference between cattle prices in the United States and Mexico, as mentioned in President Hoover's Des Moines address.

Presumably for the benefit of Speaker Garner's constituents, President Hoover informed the country that there are 2,000,000 cattle in Mexico that sell for $2.50 per hundred pounds. Only the tariff, which Speaker Garner, Mr. Reed, et al., have been denouncing, keeps these cattle from being shipped into the United States, where the price is $4.50 per hundred pounds.

Of course, the former senator can not deny that fact, so he alleges that Mexican cattle are long-horned, measly critters that are not worth much anyway. Furthermore, he says, Mexico has an export tax on cattle that would keep some of them from moving to the United States. This reasoning seems rather muddy, since the fact remains that the tariff keeps out cheap Mexican cattle. But the chief competition which cattle men of this country would have to meet if the tariff were knocked down would not come from Mexico. Doubtless the President used that comparison to give a graphic picture of what the so-called tariff wall means along the Rio Grande.

If Mr. Reed would investigate a little further he would find that cattle prices in Argentina, where some of the finest beef in the world is produced, are even lower than in Mexico. Beef can be shipped from Argentina to the great centers of consumption in the United States almost as cheaply as it can be shipped from Texas. Only the tariff keeps cattle prices in New York at nearly four times the Argentine price.

It might be of some interest to Mr. Reed to note that the cattle tariff was enacted with the aid of Senators Ashurst, Barkley, Black, Bratton, Connally, Fletcher, George, Harrison, Hawes, Hayden, Walsh, Pitman, Wheeler, Sheppard and Tydings, all of whom are Democrats. The cattle tariff can not be denounced without arousing the ire of these and many other stalwart supporters of Gov. Roosevelt. It looks as if every one is in step but Jim.

ASKING HELP FROM ABROAD.

The charge is made by the Republican national committee that James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, is soliciting funds in foreign countries to defeat the Republican administration. Mr. Farley vigorously denies the accusation and alleges that it is a frame-up on the part of Republican campaigners. The letter of solicitation which is supposed to have been written to a Canadian shipping man, ought to be promptly investigated. The truth of a matter which is of such vital interest to the American people should be definitely established, if that is at all possible.

In view of the stand Gov. Roosevelt has taken on the tariff, it may be assumed that commercial and industrial interests in foreign countries would like to see him elected. They want to increase their exports to the United States, and they realize that the chances for so doing are not good so long as the Republican tariff policy is in effect. To solicit funds from such interests and thus incur an obligation to them would be a betrayal of the American people. When suspicion of such an offense is cast upon any party it should spare no effort to disapprove the allegations, if they are untrue.

Various rumors that some misguided Democrats are soliciting funds from prominent importers have been circulated during the campaign. If this is true, American workers and farmers, whose livelihood is dependent upon the protective tariff, certainly ought to know about it. If it is not true, rumor should be contradicted with facts. The tariff issue is one that should be decided by Americans for the benefit of Americans. Any other policy would be akin to economic suicide.

When the tariff act of 1930 was under consideration in Congress at least one Democrat invited foreign nations to protest against its provisions. Senator Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma, admitted on the floor of the Senate that he had written letters to foreign embassies in Washington, asking them to state how the Smoot-Hawley bill would affect the exports from their respective countries to the United States. Of course, foreign governments responded with delight. Now Democratic candidates are using these protests to support their claims that foreign nations retaliated against the tariff act.

It goes without saying that domestic politics ought to be kept within the confines of the United States. Foreign contributions to any party and the solicitation of foreign protests against domestic legislation by party leaders are reprehensible in the extreme. Whether or not the letter alleged to have been written by Mr. Farley is genuine, the Democratic party can thank Senator Thomas for lending support to the belief that some Democrats are seeking foreign aid in trying to tear down the wall that protects American labor and industry.

DEBT PROFITEERING.

A new phase of the war debts question is perplexing France. Stephane Lauzanne wrote an article for the Paris newspaper Le Matin, reminding the French that payments on the debt of that country to American taxpayers do not yet equal the sum France agreed to pay for American goods sold to that country on credit after the war. The effect of this reminder is, of course, to make talk of cancellation of the debts sound ridiculous.

When the armistice was signed the United States had a vast supply of canned foods, automobiles, and other stores in France. Rather than ship these goods back to the United States, the Government sold them to France for $410,000,000. Members of the War Debts Commission estimate that these goods were actually worth $2,000,000,000, but France was given a bargain price to avoid reshipments to this country. The French government in turn sold these goods to its people.

France has paid the United States only about $200,000,000 on her total debt, which includes the price agreed upon for these war supplies. France owes $210,000,000 more before this commercial debt can be considered settled. If the debts should be cancelled at present France would actually be making money out of this deal, because she sold the war supplies for considerably more than she has paid this country. Of course, the debt for these supplies was merged with the cash loans in the funding agreement and scaled down about 50 per cent, but that does not make less preposterous the French claim that the debt is "political" and should be cancelled along with German reparations.

The total value of war supplies sold to foreign governments after the war is $740,000,000. Yet payments on account of principal under the funding agreements amount to only $443,310,000. It is also notable that $2,521,000,000 in cash was lent to foreign governments after the armistice was signed. This money was used for reconstruction purposes and relief work. It is in no sense a "political" debt made for prosecuting the war.

These facts are not generally known in Europe. Politicians in every country have preached so long that the money and goods advanced to European governments was America's contribution to the war against a common enemy that the people have come to believe it. It is refreshing to find in France at least one realist who understands that cancellation of the debts at present would amount to profiteering at the expense of a most generous benefactor.

Now is the time for Maryland industries to ask Gov. Ritchie which one of them is to be butchered for the sake of improving bad conditions abroad.

Gov. Roosevelt's promissory notes are not worth much because they are not indorsed by the Democrats in Congress.

Forty million workers will hold their jobs with their votes or know the reason why.

REVENUE FROM BEER

By Editorial Research Reports.

The greatest annual production of beer in the United States was 66,000,000 barrels, in the fiscal year 1913-14. This amounted to about 21 gallons per capita population. With the population now about 25 per cent greater than in 1913-14, the restoration of beer might be expected to result in an annual production of about 82,000,000 barrels were it not for the existing of factors working against a production of that magnitude.

For one thing, State prohibition laws were in effect in only fourteen States by the end of 1914, whereas now there are 31 States with State-wide prohibition legislation of their own. (Eight States will hold referenda November 8 on repealing their enforcement acts.) This legislation would theoretically be unaffected if the Volstead act were amended to permit 2.75 per cent beer, except where the State law automatically follows Federal legislation in defining intoxicating liquors. Of course, there is no telling if all the dry States would be zealous in enforcing their laws against 2.75 per cent beer if it were permitted by Federal statute.

Secondly, preprohibition beer is estimated to have had 3.8 per cent alcoholic content, on the average. There is no telling if 2.75 per cent beer would prove as satisfactory to beer drinkers as 3.8 per cent beer, or if as large a proportion of the population would prove to be beer-drinking in 1932 as in 1914.

The statement issued March 8 by the wet minority of the House ways and means committee declared that a tax of $5 a barrel on 2.75 per cent beer would bring into the Treasury "revenue conservatively estimated as amounting to $350,000,000 annually." The annual production of beer would have to be 70,000,000 barrels to meet this estimate. With 31 gallons to the barrel, a tax of $5 per barrel would amount to 1 cent on each one-half pint glass, or 2 cents on a pint bottle.

The Federal tax on beer was only $1 a barrel in 1913-14, and the revenue from beer and other fermented liquors in that year amounted to $67,000,000. With the advent of the war, the tax was raised until it became $6 a barrel in the revenue act of 1918. The revenue from fermented liquors in the fiscal year 1917-18 was the highest in the history of the Nation, $126,000,000. However, the spread of State-wide prohibition and the war-time restrictions on the manufacture of beer reduced beer production in 1917-18 to 50,000,000 barrels.

Drys insist that any increase in revenues from legalizing and taxing 2.75 per cent beer would be more apparent than real, inasmuch as the money spent on beer would be diverted from purchases of other commodities, so that the Government's revenue from other sources would be automatically reduced.

It is estimated that before 1915, with 34 States still wet, State and local revenues from liquor taxes and licenses amounted to about $100,000,000 annually. With only seventeen States now wet, it may be estimated that, at the same rate of taxes and licenses as in 1914, Federal legalization of 2.75 per cent beer might bring in about $50,000,000 annually in State and local revenues.

POST HASTE

The challenge to Gov. Roosevelt to name one item on which he would reduce the tariff brings a rush message from Uvalde, Tex.: "Name anything, Frank, except goat hair or onions."

If all the alleged causes of world dislocation were true, we would now have at least seventeen depressions.

It wasn't until President Hoover took a little time off to fight for himself that people realized how hard he had been fighting all the time for the rest of us.

Democrats who think their new allies can be denatured by adding another hyphen have a lot to learn about Progressives.

The perfect antitheses of this campaign are Jack Garner, rarin' to go, but hobbled, and Al Smith, balking until a fire was built under him.

Gov. Roosevelt has denounced the tariff in a dozen different ways as outrageously high. Now he says he would not reduce any duties on agriculture, nor any schedules that would hurt industry. Sounds like a new deal off the bottom of the deck.

A Democratic "dollar day" is to be held this week. But how about two for $1.01?

Al Smith is very critical of the President for not foreseeing the depression, but we find nothing in the prospectus of the Empire State Building predicting that the demand for office space in New York was due to fall off 50 per cent after 1929.

For another week, whether the heads of industry are taking an enlightened interest in their employes, or are brutally coercing honest labor will depend on party viewpoint.

Not to be outdone by his party associates John W. Davis demonstrated to an Ithaca audience that he, too, has wonderful powers of hindsight with regard to all economic and financial problems.

Chairman Farley says Democratic chances are at the peak. One week from tomorrow he can take a peek at returns with all chances eliminated.

New York is getting so annoyed with an acting mayor who wants to save money and clean up the city that Jimmy Walker's health is acting like a convalescent.

The greatest danger is that Japan will smother the 150,000-word report of the Manchurian committee with a reply of similar length.

Tom Heflin denies the report that he is to speak in this campaign. So do both parties.

The fiat and inflation record of the Democratic House of Representatives still speaks louder than the Chicago platform which was wired for sound money. PAUL HUDSON.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

JACK O' LANTERN.

Pumpkin face, with candle gleaming,
What a hollow thing you're seeming,
Empty-headed, toothless grinner,
Neither good man nor a sinner;
Just a round fat face and yellow
Like some coarse, insipid fellow,
Who, despising books and learning
And all tender culture spurning
Just grew fat and gross and juiceless,
Boastful bulk of beef, but useless.

Now our daughter, dancing round you
As a joy supreme, has crowned you,
And your bit of candle sputtering
Sets her youthful heart to fluttering,
It is Halloween—your reign is Brief. Your place in window pane is;
Pumpkin face, thou empty-headed
Sign of woe by parents dreaded,
What we know may she discover
Ere she comes to chose a lover.

Dog That Kills Sheep Could Have Been Trained to Lead the Blind

By ROBERT QUILLEN

As you read about the problems that distress our civilization, do you reflect in hopeless resignation that none but supermen could solve them?

If so, you are mistaken. The solution is so simple that the dullest mind can comprehend it. In fact, it is so elementary and so obvious that its very simplicity prevents its adoption. An age awed by the mysteries of science has little respect for things it can understand.

Experience has shown that adult instructors can shape the beliefs and characters of children as the potter shapes clay.

The young people of Russia have been taught a strange doctrine. They feel an honest scorn for people who strive for private gain, and they feel an amused pity for people who believe in God.

Boys trained in gangland's environment regard policemen as their natural enemies and recognize no higher virtue than loyalty to the gang.

These young people are sincere. They are quite sure their way is right. They know no faith or way of life except the one they have been taught.

Is further evidence needed that young lives can be shaped as the instructor wills? And if a boy can be taught to hate policemen, can he not as easily be taught to hate gangsters?

Here, then, is your solution.

Teach children to tell the truth and to scorn dishonesty.

You say that is done now. Oh, no; it isn't. Not as Russia teaches. Not as the professions are taught.

Teach truth and honesty as fanatics teach. Begin at the cradle and teach through all the years of adolescence. Teach by precept and example and parable. Teach by means of government and private propaganda, in school and out of school, desperately and unremittingly as though life itself depended on the learning.

Would the result be worth the effort?

Every man's word would be good. There would be no cheating, no sharp dealing, no misrepresentation. There would be no trickery, no theft, no pretense. Jails, courts and lawyers would be rare. Crime and injustice would be things of the past.

Does it seem impossible? Not if all of us could realize how great the profit would be and unite to make the plan effective.

If Russian children can be taught one doctrine, American children can be taught another. The stumbling block is not the child's inability to learn but our lack of the will to teach.

The Beer Tax.

Kansas City Star.

Gov. Roosevelt spoke confidently last night of the Democratic proposal "to lay a tax on beer to augment the Treasury's income." Shouts of "atta boy," greeted his statement. It is an intriguing idea to people who hope to see their own high taxes reduced through the revenue from a tax on beer, and to the bonus advocates who think a Treasury surplus from a beer tax could be used to pay the bonus.

But it isn't wise to count unhatched chickens. In the last session of Congress the proposal to legalize a tax on 2.75 per cent beer received only 26 votes in the Senate, which was only about half the number required for such action. In the House only 43 per cent of the members were ready to vote wet on a test. Of course the membership of both houses will be changed in the Congress that normally will assemble a year from next December. Still, it is exceedingly doubtful whether Congress will be wet enough to vote for beer in advance of modification or repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Performance vs. Promises.

Christian Science Monitor.

President Hoover, at Detroit, crystalized the central issue of the current political campaign in the United States when he contrasted the performance of his administration, particularly in respect to economic reconstruction and governmental economy, with the promises of the Democratic presidential nominee—and then contrasted both with the performances of the Democratically controlled House of Representatives.

Mr. Hoover was at his best in his analysis of Gov. Roosevelt's charges and commitments in relation to the Federal budget. No adroit side-stepping, no intricate manipulation of figures mark Mr. Hoover's reply; rather is it a plain-spoken, remarkably simplified, straight-to-the-point rendering of accounts.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Rare Charm of Washington Landscape in Autumn—More Attractive to Tourists Every Year.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every time the fall of the year returns and Washington's leafage begins to tint I feel like going down in front of the Municipal Building and taking my hat off to the statue of "Boss" Shepherd, who started the systematic planting of trees along the city streets.

The autumn coloration of the leaves at tidewater in this latitude is not perhaps as vivid as in the mountains or farther north. But in the blending of browns and yellows and bronze and dashes of red on the massed green of the parks there is an effect which is quite as enjoyable. It is a subdued effect which, I believe, painters in their maturity are fond of. And how it does last!

With a not noticeable alteration from day to day, its beauty increases for a full month or more. And it gets far into December before its luster is altogether gone.

More than three months of falling leaves and blue-sky weather, just suited for outdoor enjoyment, with only enough rain to keep the landscape fresh—that is the fall of the year in Washington City.

There are indications that tourists in greater numbers from year to year are yielding to the attraction of our protracted season of autumnal change. If it is not already so now, I believe it will be not many years until the advantages of Washington as a fall resort will have world-wide publicity.

In addition, Washington is bound to become the country's great center of outdoor sports. Our fall weather for weeks at a stretch is ideal for football. When a stadium worthy of the National Capital is built the annual Army and Navy gridiron contest and other games will, as incidental attractions, swell the throng of transient citizens who will sojourn here every fall. JESSE BURKE.

How Could Influx of Foreign Goods Help Americans Who Produce the Same Goods?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Gov. Roosevelt says he is not for a lower tariff, but that the protective rates must be adjusted. He demands a competitive tariff arrangement. As our exports and imports in money value amount to about the same, with exports in our favor, what is his big idea—his "new deal?"

Europe wants another moratorium. She wants to borrow more money. Millions of people are out of work in Europe. Wages average half what they are here—in some countries 60 to 70 per cent less than in this country.

In this country Mr. Roosevelt says 10,000,000 people are out of work. Most of these men and women worked in factories. Many now employed are working on less than half time.

Any arrangement Mr. Roosevelt would have us make with other nations in tariff rates is predicated on lowering our tariff rates on manufactured goods and raw material from the respective nations, so that they might export to us their "surplus."

Every dollar's worth of foreign goods sold here which comes into competition with our products means only one thing—less goods produced here, fewer men and women employed here, less chance of recovery.

In the best times our foreign sales amounted only to 10 per cent of our total sales. So Mr. Roosevelt would jeopardize the 90 per cent.

F. C. WRIGHT.

Amber Light Should Be Left on for Pedestrians, Who Are Endangered by Cars Turning Corners.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I make my home in Washington at the Ebbitt Hotel and spend eight or ten months out of the year here. Living downtown, as I do, nearly all of my time is spent as a pedestrian in the congested district, and many times a day I am impressed with the grave danger of all pedestrians because of the present traffic regulation which permits both right and left hand turns on the green light.

It is a matter of almost hourly occurrence to see some elderly person or immature child have to jump and run when he is properly crossing on a green light to avoid being struck by cars making turns. This is invariably true in the case of taxicabs, many of the drivers of which ruthlessly take the right of way, irrespective of the rights of pedestrians. May I suggest that a far better plan than the one now in force in Washington is that which has been found satisfactory in Atlantic City and Boston, where the amber light is left on for 30 seconds and holds all traffic, both ways, in order that pedestrians may have an opportunity of crossing?

The life of one child is worth many times all the inconveniences and delay that may ever be imposed on motorists, and it seems to me that no regulation should be overlooked which would tend to protect people walking on the streets, especially in congested districts.

JOHN F. PRYOR.

Lowering of Tariff Would Ruin American Industry.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Democrats are preaching that the cure for the depression lies in the lowering of the present tariff. A blunder such as that would cause financial ruin to the farmer and make return to normalcy impossible. The removal of protection would force us to compete with the entire world in our own markets.

America is now facing a crisis never before heard of in its history. The retention of the Republican party will bring about slow but sure restoration of living welfare. The bringing in of the Democratic party would bring about radical changes that are frightening to contemplate. We can not afford to experiment at this stage of history. H. F. M.

HAPPENINGS IN WASHINGTON SOCIETY CIRCLES

Secretary Adams Will Go to Boston This Week; Secretary Doak on Pennsylvania and Ohio Trip

THE SECRETARY OF THE NAVY, Mr. Charles Francis Adams, will go to Boston the middle of the week to spend a few days.

The Secretary of Labor and Mrs. William N. Doak left last night for a trip in Pennsylvania and Ohio. They returned Saturday from a short speaking tour in New York, Massachusetts and Maryland.

Senor Luis R. Alfaro, attache of the Panama Legation, with Senora Alfaro, are guests at the Wardman Park Hotel for an indefinite period.

Mrs. William Howard Taft, widow of the Chief Justice, will go to New Haven at the end of the week to be the guest of Mrs. Henry Sargent for a week.

Mrs. Thomas, wife of Commander William D. Thomas, U. S. N., has gone to New York, where she is with Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt. Mrs. Vanderbilt spent some time with Mrs. Thomas in Washington, and was accompanied to New York by Mrs. Thomas on her return.

The engagement has been announced in New York of Miss Mary Sholes Bryan, daughter of Mrs. H. Berger Bryan, of Belvedere, Fredericksburg, Va., and of William Jennings Bryan, jr., of Beverly Hills, Calif., to Alfred Smith Forsyth, of New York. Miss Bryan is a granddaughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, thrice Democratic presidential nominee. She was graduated from school in the West and later studied for there years in New York.

Mr. Forsyth is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Porter Forsyth, of St. Davids, Pa. He was graduated from Columbia and later from Columbia University Law School. He is a member of the Columbia University Club and Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity. Mr. Forsyth is associated with the law office of Everett F. Warrington.

The marriage will take place next spring.

Mrs. Victor Sidney Foster, wife of the late Col. Foster, U. S. A., will introduce her daughter, Miss Lydia-Lane Foster, to society this winter at at luncheon at the Shoreham the latter part of November.

Miss Buell Will Become Bride of Mr. Parry November 12.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Miss Ellen M. Buell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hyde Buell, of Herndon, Va., to Mr. Edmund H. Parry, jr., of Washington. The wedding will take place on November 12 at 4 o'clock, in St. Margaret's Church. Miss Buell will have as maid of honor her sister, Miss Alice Hyde Buell, and the bridesmaids will be Mrs. Thomas N. De Lashmutt, Miss Helen Bland, Mrs Richard P. Schulze, Mrs. John Littlepage, Mrs. J. Bradley Colburn, of New York, and Mrs. William Allen, of Jacksonville, Fla.

Mr. Oscar William Giese, of Minneapolis, will be best man, and the ushers will be Mr. Randall Buckingham, Mr. Albert Stephan, Mr. Jerome Skehan, Mr. R. Browning Larson, Dr. Preston Haynes and Mr. Bernard Campbell Frye, of Akron, Ohio. Following the ceremony, there will be a small reception.

The luncheon to have been given by Maj. and Mrs. Henry D. F. Munnikhuysen on Wednesday at the Mayflower for the latter's debutante daughter, Miss Betty Burke, has been postponed until later in the month.

Mr. and Mrs Patrick Boyle, of London, England, who have been on a motor trip through the United States, are guests at the Shoreham for a few days. They will sail for home on the Aquitania next Friday.

Mr. O. DeG. Vanderbilt, jr., will arrive here today from his home in Cincinnati, Ohio, to attend the National Fox Hunters Association convention which is in session this week at Wardman Park Hotel, and the National Field Trials. He will be at Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Harrison will move into their new house at 2343 S street the latter part of this week.

Their two children, who have been in Pennsylvania all summer with Mrs. Harrison's parents, will come to Washington as soon as Mr. and Mrs. Harrison are settled. Their former home was at 1101 Sixteenth street.

Mrs. Henry K. Babcock and Mrs. Albert C. Gilbert, of Neenah, Wisc., are guests at the Shoreham or a two weeks' visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell To Return to U. S. Soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Caldwell, who with their small daughter, Barbara, have been spending the summer in Europe, will sail tomorrow for this country, and will return to Washington immediately, and open their apartment at Wardman Park Hotel for the winter.

The marriage of Miss Gertrude Millstein to Mr. Abe West was performed yesterday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Millstein, 3523 Sixteenth street northwest. A wedding breakfast was held following the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a frock of coral velvet made along princess lines, with a small velvet turban to match. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of crushed flowers. Her sister, Miss Pauline Millstein, was maid of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. West will make their home in Washington following a motor tour to the Midwest.

The New York State Society of the District of Columbia will inaugurate its social activities for the season with a brilliantly arranged Bicentennial Halloween ball in the gold room of the Shoreham Hotel this evening. Arrangements have been made for the best music available, and dancing will start at 9 and continue until 12:30. Mr. William R. Vallance, assistant legal adviser of the State Department, who is the recently elected president of the society, extends a cordial invitation to all members from the Empire State and their friends to attend.

While costumes are not obligatory, it is urged that as many members and guests as possible wear colonial or Halloween costumes, as one of the special features of the evening will be the awarding of prizes to the ones most attractively costumed as to artistic effect, appropriateness and cleverness of designs. Halloween favors will be in abundance.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Vallance will have receiving with them Secretary and Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, Mr. and Mrs. John Lord O'Brian, Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. LeRoy, Dr. and Mrs. Lamar Harris, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hammerly, Dr. W. J. Davis, Mrs. William A. Carr and Miss Margaret Harrison.

The officers of the society for this year are: Mr. William R. Vallance, president; Mr. William A. Carr, Mrs. C. F. Hammerly and Dr. Lamar Harris, vice presidents; Miss Margaret Harrison, secretary; Dr. W. J. Davis, treasurer; Miss Helen Brown, historian, and the trustees are Representative John Taber, Representative John J. Boylan, Mr. Grant R. Denniston, Mr. James E. Black, Mr. Maurice E. Sands and Miss Louise Evanson.

Rev. and Mrs. Dudley At Home Tomorrow.

The Rev. George Fiske Dudley and Mrs. Dudley will be at home informally tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock at the rectory, 1515 Newton street northwest, to members of the parish of St. Stephen and the Incarnation and to those who take a friendly interest in the parish.

The rector and Mrs. Dudley have planned a series of informal at-homes during the winter, which will follow the tea tomorrow at which officers of the church union of the parish have been asked to assist in welcoming the guests.

The Halloween celebration in the gold room of Wardman Park Hotel this evening promises to be a very gay affair. Among those who have made advance reservations for the dinner dance are Dr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Muldoon, who will entertain a group of eight; Mr. John D. Martin, who will be host to a party of twelve, and Mr. John Hart for eight guests. Many additional reservations have been made for the supper dance at 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Boyd Taylor and members of the board of the District branch of the Needle Work Guild of America, are entertaining at a tea for section presidents and directors tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock.

The tea will be held at the residence of Mrs. Graham H. Powell, 3503 Woodley road.

Dr. Jorge E. Boyd has arrived here from Panama to join Mrs. Boyd and their family at Wardman Park Hotel. Mrs. Boyd is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rolfe E. Bolling, of Wardman.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Levy will be at home next Sunday from 7 until 10 o'clock in celebration of their fortieth wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Eugene R. Woodson and her daughter, Mrs. Albert Earle Conradis, will entertain November 14 at luncheon at the National Woman's Country Club for Miss Sykes, the daughter of Judge and Mrs. Eugene O. Sykes. Mrs. Conradis made her debut last winter and will entertain the buds of this year with her mother.

Beta Alpha Chapter of Phi Mu Fraternity at George Washington University announces the pledging of the following girls: Mary Parrian, Mary Righter, Barbara Price, Alice Kennedy, Honora Noyes, Natalie Schneider, Virginia Kennedy, and Betty Cain.

Mrs. Cecil Beasley, Mrs. Henry J. Butt, Mrs. Elmer Bowers, Miss Louise Hoover, and Mrs. Thomas J. Horne, will assist Mrs. Harry Jackson Landrus, chairman of arrangements for the card party that is to be given under the auspices of the Rector's Aid Chapter of St. Andrew's Church, corner of New Hampshire avenue and V street.

The party will be given at the Roosevelt Hotel on the evening of Wednesday, November 16.

All-States Halloween Ball at Willard Tonight.

Keen interest is being manifested in the All-States Halloween ball to be given in the grand ballroom of the Willard Hotel this evening. The ball is scheduled at this time to enable many of the patrons attending the ball to witness the parade on the Avenue. Already many attractive prizes have been selected by the committee in charge for the wearers of the prettiest, funniest and most original costumes.

The Halloween spirit will pervade the meeting. Goblins, ghosts, old Mother Witch and many other characters will appear on the floor to add to the spirit of the occasion. An excellent dance orchestra has been selected to play till the wee hours of the morning.

Members from every State in the Union will attend. Among these will be as honored guests the presidents of the various State societies in Washington.

The Washington Chapter of the Daughters of the United States Army will hold its November meeting tomorrow with a 1 o'clock luncheon at the Army and Navy Club. Reservations by daughters and granddaughters of Regular Army officers, should be made through the vice president, Mrs. James H. B. Bogman, by noon today.

Invitations are being issued for a series of dances to be given by the commandant and officers of the Washington Navy Yard and Naval Station. The dances will be held in the sail loft of the navy yard on the following dates: Friday, November 18; Wednesday, December 28; Friday, January 27; Friday, February 24.

The officers attached to the navy yard, naval gun factory, naval hospital and naval air station will be hosts at this series of dances. Capt. Frank D. Berrien, U. S. Navy, is chairman of the navy yard dance committee and Commander Howard F. Kingman, U. S. Navy, is secretary.

A bridge and mahjong party for the benefit of Grace Episcopal Church will be held on Wednesday evening November 9, at 8:30 o'clock, at the Mayflower Hotel.

A partial list of the patronesses includes: Mrs. William J. Carr, Mrs. Delos A. Blodgett, Mrs. Charles G. Matthews, Mrs. Edwin S. Puller, Mrs. Modevaun Crawford, Mrs. J. Thompson Waler, Mrs. Richard D. La Garde, Mrs. Frederick W. Calerman, Mrs. Eugene Adams, Mrs. Davis B. Wells, Mrs. John L. Prastor, Mrs. Hohath Hawkins, Mrs. Henry P. Edwin, Mrs. Charles J Williamson, Mrs. Piere Gaillard and Mrs. James W. McAndrews.

The Abigail Hartman Rice Chapter D. A. R. will give its fourteenth annual Continental ball in the gold room of the Shoreham Hotel, Tuesday evening, November 22, at 10 o'clock. A card party which is a very popular feature in connection with the ball will be given in the palm court beginning at 8 o'clock.

Miss Ramona J. Newman is regent of the chapter. Mrs. J. Catherine Estlow, vice regent, is chairman of the ball and has assisting her Mrs. von Pagenhardt, chairman of the patroness' committee; Miss Anne Gleason, chairman of the young ladies committee; Miss Doris Heaton, chairman of the young men's committee, and Mrs. William R. Lane, chairman of the candy committee. Mrs. Mallette Roach Spengler, former State corresponding secretary, is chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements for the card party.

The proceeds of the ball and card party are used to further the work of the Chapter in Americanization and education.

G. W. U. Student Group To Present "Cock Robin."

Columbian Women of the George Washington University will sponsor the Cue and Curtain Club, student dramatic organization, in a benefit presentation of "Cock Robin," to be given at the Wardman Park Theater on Friday and Saturday evenings, November 18 and 19.

Mrs. Earl Baldwin McKinley, wife of the dean of the George Washington University School of Medicine, is general chairman of the benefit. Mrs. Joseph W. Cox, wife of Justice Cox of the District Supreme Court and of the law faculty of the university, is serving as chairman of patrons and patronesses. Other chairmen are Mrs. Elmer Louis Kayser, ushers; Mrs. Russell McNitt, tickets; Miss Margaret Maize, printing. Also serving on the benefit committee are Mrs. Oscar Benwood Hunter, Mrs. Willard Hayes Yeager, Miss Anna Pearl Cooper and Miss Elizabeth Reeves.

The auxiliary board of regents of Trinity College is highly gratified over the very satisfactory progress in preparations for the Armistice ball and card party which it is to give at Wardman Park Hotel. The proceeds of the affair are to be devoted to the students' loan fund.

The list of patrons and patronesses includes Mrs. Thomas P. Brown, Mrs. John Cammack, Mrs. Washington Lee Cappe, Miss Minnie E. Carroll, Mrs. Thomas H. Carter, Mrs. Charles J. Cassidy, Mme. Louise Coutinho, Miss Elizabeth Dolan, Mrs. William Donovan, Miss Ella Loraine Dorsey, Mrs. Nellie E. Fealy, Mrs. Robert L. Graves, Mrs. P. F. Hannan, Mrs. James F. Hartnett, Mrs. James G. Haskell, Mrs. Francis J. Hemelt, Mrs. M. E. Joynt, the Misses Kerby, Mr. J. Leo Kolb, Mrs. Clarence Lee, Mrs. Peter John McGovern, Mrs. Charles A. McMahon, Mrs. D. D. Mulcahy, Mrs. Alice Murphy, Dr. M. M. Nicholson, Mrs. John J. Noonan, Dr. Mary O'Malley, Mrs. T. E. Petty, Mrs. Raphael L. Shanafelt and Mrs. George A. Weschler.

Representative Collins To Address Forum Today.

Representative Ross Collins, of Mississippi, will be the guest of honor and speaker at the weekly forum luncheon which the Woman's National Democratic Club will give today. Representative Collins will discuss "Roosevelt, the Man of Destiny." Representative Collins served two terms as attorney general of Mississippi and has been a member of the House since 1920. Mrs. Collins expects to accompany her husband.

Mrs. Daniel C. Roper will be the guest of honor at the forum luncheon which the club will give on Monday, November 7, the day before election. Mr. Roper will give a resume of the campaign up to the last day.

The Democratic gala victory ball on next Friday evening in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel will assemble all democracy in the National Capital expectantly awaiting the verdict of the election campaigns.

The double row of boxes that outline the large ballroom of the Mayflower will have many distinguished people in them. There also supper will be served on small tables for the private box parties. The banquet hall of the hotel will care for the other guests.

The Women's National Democratic Club has taken a box for the victory ball through its president, Mrs. Samuel Herrick, who is on the committee of arrangements, of which Mrs. John Allen Dougherty is chairman. The National Young Democrats Association has as chairman

Quality Silks

In Our Annual Fall Event

At the Lowest Prices in Our Recollection

The "Whys and Wherefores" of This Selling . . .

Evidently Washington women like to sew or have their clothes made, judging by the yards and yards of our QUALITY SILKS they buy.

So we planned this special Fall Selling, offering the greatest possible values in our regular high-quality silks.

We have based this selling on the silks that we have found to be in the greatest demand—so nothing but the most fashionable and most-wanted silks are included.

• • •

Therefore, there is more power to your dollars this week—for these silks are at prices that may be impossible to duplicate later—and they are on sale at these prices only throughout this week.

MR. COOLIDGE AND THOSE JOBS.

"Former President Coolidge has asked the newspapers to keep a blanket denial for all rumors that he is being considered as the head of any corporation or institution. He is extremely annoyed by repeated rumors."—News item.

• • • •

SCENE—A room in Mr. Coolidge's home.

Mr. Coolidge (Answering the phone)—Hello!

Voice—Mr. Coolidge, this is the Associated Press. We have a report that you are being considered for the presidency of Harvard.

Mr. Coolidge (quite impatiently)—Nuthin' to it.

Voice—Thank you.

Mr. Coolidge—Not at all.

(The phone rings again.)

Mr. Coolidge—Hello!

Voice—This is the Banner speaking. Is it true, Mr. Coolidge, that you have received an offer to head the New York Central?

Mr. Coolidge (sighing wearily)—Nope. Never heard of such a thing. And anyhow, I——

Mrs. Coolidge (calling from the front hall).—Calvin, there's a man here to see you.

Mr. Coolidge—What's he want?

Mrs. Coolidge—He wants to know if you have been approached with the idea of becoming chairman of the board of National Biscuit.

Mr. Coolidge—Tell him there's nuthin' to it. And don't answer the bell any more this morning.

(There is a knock at the back door).

Mr. Coolidge (opening the door)—What is it, please?

Reporter—Mr Coolidge, we have a story that you are a candidate to succeed Judge Landis as the head of organized baseball.

Mr. Coolidge (quite obviously disturbed)—Now look here, young man, that's perfectly ridiculous and——

Reporter—There is also a report in the office that you are being considered as a new football coach at Yale. The team's been doing rather badly and——

Mr. Coolidge—You ought to realize that's absurd

Reporter—And the editor asked me to ask you to say whether or not you would accept a job as czar of the moving picture industry.

Mr. Coolidge (nearly whipped)—Please go away!

(The ex-president closes the door and goes to a room in the attic to get away from it all.)

Mrs. Coolidge (calling up to him)—Calvin!

Mr. Coolidge—Yes, dear.

Mrs. Coolidge.—There's a telegram for you.

Mr. Coolidge.—Read it out loud to me, Grace, please.

Mrs. Coolidge (reading).—Have you had offers to become new president of the Giants, treasurer of Fundamental Films, managing director of the Blatz Brothers Cafeteria Chain or chairman of the board of the Nine Little Tailors, Inc.?

Mr. Coolidge (weakly).—No!

Mrs. Coolidge.—Oh, there's a postscript. The United Press want to know if you have been offered $50,000 a year to play third base for Brooklyn.

Mr. Coolidge (sliding out of his chair onto the floor).—Make mine vanilla!

FAIR WARNING!

(As received by a local business house.)

Gentlemen:

We are in receipt of your impertinent letter of recent date making request for payment of our account with you. For your information we will illustrate how we pay our bills.

At the end of each month we determine our cash position and set aside whatever amount possible for our creditors. The names of our creditors and the amounts due them are written on a slip and the slips placed in a hat. The slips are pulled out of the hat until the amount set aside for the creditors is reached and all of these items are paid immediately.

If we are in receipt of another letter from you as acknowledged in our first paragraph we will not even place your name in the hat.

Yours very truly,

Bazaar and Dance Given At Temple by Auxiliary

A bazaar and barn dance, under auspices of the Gen. Nelson A. Miles Auxiliary of the United Spanish War Veterans, was held last night at the Pythian Temple.

A photograph published in The Sunday Post stated the fete was being given by an auxiliary of the Knights of Pythias. This was an error. The Post regrets it.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

BOTH candidates for the Presidency will go on the air tonight, with Gov. Roosevelt taking up his stand before the microphone when President Hoover stops speaking.

The President will address a political rally in Madison Square Garden, New York City, beginning at 9 o'clock, over WRC. It is scheduled to end at 10:30 o'clock, when Gov. Roosevelt will go on the air from Boston, also over WRC.

WILLIAM S. PALEY, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, will undoubtedly receive thanks of all music lovers for giving to Washington, through his newly acquired Station WJSV, the concerts of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Leopold Stokowski, such as the one last Friday afternoon, occupying the period from 2:30 to 4:30 o'clock.

This program is devoid of any commercial announcements and is unquestionably the finest musical contribution of the season. Nine more of these concerts are scheduled, the next one for the coming Friday. There will also be four night broadcasts of the Philadelphia Orchestra, beginning Saturday, November 26, but whether Columbia will bring these to Washington is not known.

Another of the fine musical programs which is now heard in its entirety in Washington each time it goes on the air is the Howard Barlow Symphony Orchestra series. The half hour is one which can be depended upon to furnish a bright spot any evening.

Walter P. Chrysler, automobile manufacturer, preparing to conduct a "convention" of Plymouth dealers in the United States and Canada by radio on November 1, has taken out a $500,000 insurance policy against breaks in wires or other failure of the broadcasting equipment.

COLUMBIA is still undecided about where to put its WJSV main studio, which it hopes to make one of the most modern in the country. It had been planned to raise the roof of the top floor of the Shoreham Building—the ceiling of which is much too low—and construct the new studio directly behind the control room. Upon investigation, however, this proved to be too expensive an idea.

Looking around for another site, the thought suddenly struck Harry Butcher, manager of the Columbia station, that the lobby of the Shoreham Building might be an ideal place. The ceiling, now a very high one, could be made the desired height and the room could be made as large as is needed. As it is planned to admit audiences to this studio, the elimination of the elevator service also is a factor.

The final decision has not been made, but Mr. Butcher is certain that WJSV is going to have a really first-class studio in Washington.

There are studios in the building on the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway, but it is the intention of Mr. Butcher to put on most of the programs from the city. The law requires that a program must be signed on and signed off at the point of origination, which in this case is in the State of Virginia, but does not say that the program itself must be staged in the same place as the transmitter is located. Thus WJSV explains its plan to have the main studio located in town.

WMAL will stage a round-up of local dance bands, beginning at 10:15 o'clock tonight to celebrate Halloween. The units to be heard include Pete Macias' Club Michel Orchestra, Irving Boernstein's Lotus Orchestra, Lew Colvin's Regal Orchestra, David McWilliams' Arabian Nights Orchestra and Tommy Miles' Club Prudhom Orchestra. They will be on the air for a half hour each.

Harry Horlick's musical program will be broadcast over WRC an hour earlier tonight, to make way for President Hoover, who will deliver his address at the usual hour.

The weekly concerts of the Jack Frost Melody Moments, conducted by Josef Pasternack, henceforth will be heard from 9:30 to 10 o'clock on Monday nights over the WJZ network. The performance will be cancelled for tonight only, however, since all the stations associated with both networks of the National Broadcasting Co. are carrying President Hoover's address.

THE other day down at the Navy Yard, Jess Willard, new WJSV announcer, found the selection "Comairour" included in the program. The title was a new one for him, so he promptly began a search of all the pronounciation guidebooks which are a part of an announcer's equipment, but to no avail. Another frantic search was made, but finally Jess had to put his pride in his pocket and approach Lieut. Charles Benter, leader of the band, with a request for the pronounciation.

Lieut. Benter explained that he had coined the word and that it meant "Commander of the Air Squadron." The march was written by Lieut. Benter and dedicated to Rear Admiral H. V. Butler.

Whispering Jack Smith, barytone of radio, recording studios and stage, will be heard in a new program series with Arnold Johnson's Orchestra and the Hummingbirds, girl harmony trio, to be broadcast over WJSV at 8 o'clock each Monday and Wednesday night.

HUDSON LINE ADDED BY PACKARD DEALER

Agency for This District Is Taken by Firm Headed by Oscar Coolican.

Oscar Coolican, president of the Packard Washington Motor Car Co., distributors for Packard automobiles, announces that his company has taken the distributorship of the Hudson, Essex and Essex Terraplane automobiles for Washington and that portion of Virginia and Maryland adjacent to this city, which they will handle in addition to the Packard.

Ten years ago, Mr. Coolican organized the motor car company of which he is the head to handle the Packard account in this territory. From a small beginning the organization has grown until there are 124 employes on the payroll and the company enjoys an unusual volume of business in the fine car field numbering among its clientele more than 2,900 Packard owners.

A salesroom is maintained at Connecticut avenue and S street, where both lines of cars will be displayed. The service building at 2320 Kalorama road has facilities for handling more than 176 service jobs a day. It is complete to the last detail and under the one roof any repair that might be necessary, from the smallest adjustment to complete rebuilding and refinishing can be done.

The addition of the Hudson line of automobiles will enable this company to fill the motoring requirements of the entire price range of buyers from the lowest to the most expensive custom creation.

Registration figures show that there are more than 9,000 Hudson and Essex automobiles registered in Washington.

Mr. Coolican, in making the announcement, said, "It is with the idea of doing a bigger and better sales job in the automobile field that we have added Hudson to our sales line. We know that many Packard owners who found a second car in the family a necessity and did not want to make the necessary investment in a Packard have been forced in the past to go elsewhere.

"Now we shall be able to care for this business, which our records show is a substantial one. In addition we have a very fertile field in the Hudson and Essex price range that we feel we are in a position with our present organization with few additions in personnel to handle. While our Packard business for this year is ahead of last year for the same period, we feel that the additional contacts the new line will give us will not only increase this fine car field percentage but materially increase the sales of the new line of motor cars."

Plans Progressing For Big Ten Rally

Dr. Duvel Says Arrangements Being Pushed for Fete November 19.

Plans for the eleventh annual Big Ten roundup at the Shoreham Hotel November 19, are rapidly nearing completion, Dr. J. W. Duvel, of the Department of Agriculture, chairman of the committee on arrangements, said yesterday.

Every year following the last conference football game, the year's champion is honored by appropriate ceremonies at the round-up following which there is dancing, cards and other entertainment.

SOCIETY

Miss Elizabeth Wheeler, daughter of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, who will be in charge of many of the prominent younger set of the Democratic ranks. Mrs. John Edwin Nevin, of Clarendon, is chairman for parties from nearby Virginia. Already some ten boxes have been reserved for guests from the city of Baltimore, home of a Democratic national convention.

The Democratic victory ball is sponsored by the Democratic central committee of the District of Columbia, Capt. C. C. Lowe, chairman.

Mrs. Walter Brown and Mrs. Patrick Hurley head the list of patronesses for the benefit card party to be given by the Washington Unit, Women's Overseas Service League, at the Carlton Hotel at 8:30 on Friday evening. Other patronesses are Mrs. Herbert B. Crosby, Mrs. Guy V. Henry, Mrs. J. B. Mitchell, Mrs. Robert E. Coontz, Mrs. Lawrence Townsend and Miss Mabel Boardman.

The money realized from the party will be used for relief work this winter, especially among disabled or unemployed former service men and women.

Mrs. Wallace Chiswell, finance chairman, is in charge of the party, but reservations are being made through Mrs. John W. McDonald, treasurer.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover is honorary president of the Washington Unit and an honorary member of the San Francisco Unit of the league. Other officers of the local unit are Mrs. Bryan K. Ogden, president; Miss Elsie Galloway, Miss Nellie McMichael and Mrs. Larz Anderson, vice presidents, and Mrs. Fred Franke, secretary, Mrs. J. Nathaniel Steed directs the service or relief work of the organization, and Miss Nelle Patterson is membership chairman.

The weekly hunt of the Riding and Hunt Club took place Saturday at 2:30 o'clock, starting from Normandy Inn.

Plans are all complete for the horse show which the sportsmen of Washington are giving for the entertainment of the guests of the National Fox Hunters' Association annual field trials at the Rockville Fair Grounds Thursday, starting at 1:30 p. m.

Among the members of the Riding and Hunt Club who will participate will be Maj. Henry Leonard, Melvin C. Hazen, Commander and Mrs. A. B. Court, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Exnicious, Raymond Norton, Emory Galliher, Maj. W. M. Blunt, Mr. H. R. Quinter, Mrs. F. M. Fifth Avenue Fashions

SIMPLICITY plays an important part in school girl's wardrobe. That is, simplicity with a smart sophistication like today's model, in soft novelty in brown woolen mixture.

The cunning bow tied collar and cuff bands add a gay touch in plain yellow woolen.

You'll be surprised to learn that it is a one-piece affair. Inverted pleats at either side of the front and the center back create a smart effect and give ample hem fullness. The belt is removable.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

True art in subtlety! This gown combines lines and colors and achieves artistry—the skirt of black satin, bodice of creamy beige satin, and epaulets and buttons of sapphire blue—with a necklet of gold braid, repeating the gold braid on the sleeves from elbow to wrist, buttoned in the blue. A Dah-ray design.

DAYTIME wear has its quite understandable restrictions. Certain types of shoes, for instance, must be worn for golf or tennis. And only certain colors, materials and styles are good taste for the street.

But for the evening Miladi's imagination can be unlimited. With the possible exception of the demands of good taste for public places, she can indulge her artistic self to the limit.

And now let me ask myself the hardest question that is ever put to a stylist!

"How does the mode for this fall and winter actually differ from that of last winter?"

It does differ, decidedly, in certain phases, but not in general. If you see what I mean, it is simply that, while many of the new models belong, obviously, to 1932, at the same time innumerable new wraps and gowns might have been easily resurrected from the clotheshangers of yesteryear.

Variety! Variety is the law—something that can not be remembered in the history of costume. This winter the truly well-dressed women on a ballroom floor will be those who are dressed in perfect accordance with their type, as well as suitably dressed for the type of the affair they are attending.

Velvet, lustrous satin, softly toned lames (lah-mays), exquisite brocades in both the velvets and lames, and crepes are the favorite evening materials. It is difficult to attempt to say which colors will be the most popular, although brilliant colors are rather the exception than the rule. White is evident in all the fall collections, as well as black, the latter particularly in the more informal type of evening gown, suitable for public affairs, the "Sunday night" gown, so called.

• • • •

I do verily believe, with Patou and Worth, that the renaissance of the haute couture is at hand. Today it is line and color, and, as the ad says —"good? It has to be good!"

So I think, ahem, that the gown I designed for you today is good! Because it is subtle and elegant, and harmoniously colorful, and oh, a lot of things. So-o-o-o-o-o, and here it exactly is—for you to copy or change as you wish.

Black skirt, velvet or satin or crepe, I should say, or perhaps a soft silk broadcloth. Then the top creamy beige; oh, a cream that is just golden cream, really—and in whatever material best blends with your skirt material; next, sapphire blue sleeve, or shoulder decorations, and blue matchng buttons, cloth covered. And last, gold braid or embroidery bands on the sleeve, buttoned each brand with a blue button —and a necklet of this gold thread or braid, fastened to the shoulders and hanging loosely!

Like it? Well, 'tis yours. And a ruffled bag of gold and blue with blue or black knobs for handles would be the only possible—don't you think?

• • • •

I'm telling you! Furniture from packing cases, and more fun to make, and less trouble! There is a leaflet waiting for your stamped, self-addressed envelope, my deah—and then you make an adorable dressing table, with shelves and a pull-out stool to sit on and everything, and a coffee table, and a bookcase, and a wardrobe, and a couch—all out of different sized packing cases and a touch of paint or cretonne covering. Better send for the leaflet—you never know when you will want one or the other of these pieces, for the children's room, or a summer cottage, or oh, 'most anything.

Au revoir.

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO."

IF October 31 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:15 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 10:15 p. m. to 11:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m. and from 2:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.

You may look for something surprising to take place on October 31. It may be the appearance of an old friend you have not seen for some time, the making of a good, but unlooked for business deal or possibly the sudden upturn of some business plan that has seemingly been running down hill. You need not fear an unpleasant surprise, for influences point to a day of happiness. A good day for social gatherings. Young people will be greatly stimulated and benefited by outdoor exercises.

The child born on this October 31 will have to have strongly impressed upon him the fact that "honesty is the best policy." He may be frank in his relations with others. On the other hand, this child will grasp things quickly and will show himself more than willing to follow the good example and advice of his parents. Proper care and understanding guidance will make these little ones upright and respected citizens.

If October 31 is your birthday, you are a firm believer in the axiom that "actions speak louder than words." You believe in doing, in accomplishing, and not in dreamily planning. You are a person of vision, a creator of plans that will benefit many. You are practical enough to be able to put these plans and ideas into effect. You like people, as people; you like people in spite of their faults because you have the very beautiful faculty of not seeing them as they are, but as they might be. You enjoy helping people to help themselves, and you have little patience with those who go through life leaning on others.

You are extremely honest in business, very efficient, a hard and ambitious worker. You are sometimes classed as a "slave driver" though really you are not; rather, you are overly ambitious for those you work with and see in them possibilities of development which they are totally unaware of.

Both men and women born on October 31 have ideas of their own and do not want any interference in carrying them out. Above all, they seek harmony, and peace and happiness in the home. They like children and are tireless in their care of them.

Successful people born on October 31:

Richard Heber Newton, P. E. clergyman.

James O. Dorsey, ethnologist.

Kuhne Beveridge, sculptress.

THE YOUNG CHILD.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

Supper for even the young child includes vegetables and fruits to make sure that his mineral and vitamin allowance for the day is covered. The former cereal-and-milk supper for this period lacked flavor and variety. Also with it there was difficulty in providing adequately the vitamin and mineral needs and getting the child to eat enough food to last him until breakfast time. To prevent early awakening from hunger, the child must eat an adequate amount of substantial food for his supper.

Food From the Family Meal.

Potato puff, buttered string beans, bread and butter, milk, sliced ripe banana.

Stewed lima beans with bacon, baked tomato, bread and butter, milk, apple brown betty or apple sauce.

Mrs. Elwood Street to Speak.

Mrs. Elwood Street, wife of the director of the Community Chest, will address the regular meeting of the Columbia Heights Citizens Association at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Thirteenth and Fairmont streets northwest, on the welfare needs of Washington during the coming winter.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

SAY "double chin" to any woman you know, about any woman you know, and the chances are the former will say about the latter, "Getting old" or "Getting fat." A double chin is associated with age primarily, and with overweight. As a matter of fact, more chins take on a double because of poor posture than for either of the above-mentioned reasons. If you don't believe it, look around you.

Count the women who have managed to win the enviable title of "Grandmother," yet whose chins have remained in single blessedness. You'll find quite a number, I'll wager. Then take a census of the 25-year-olds, and younger, and see if there aren't quite a few betwixt and between whose chins are doing drooping and dipping acrobatics.

You'll come to the same conclusion that I have: That it isn't any specific age that causes the chin to double, even though this let down from the clear cut contour is feared and regarded as a very definite sign of age.

Sleep Without a Pillow.

When you get through watching the others, turn a watchful eye on yourself. When you read, write, sew, work, your chin is usually forced down, isn't it? See the bunching right under the contour? Unless the muscles are given enough coaxing and exercise they will soon lose their elasticity and sag to the shape they are usually forced into by this poor posture. When you read abed before retiring, do you arrange the pillows comfortably at the small of the back and shoulders, leaving the head free to be held high, or do the pillows force neck and shoulders forward? And—how do you sleep? On a mound of pillows? No matter how drowsy and luxurious they feel, as you value your youth, discard them. Or prepare to look twenty years older ten years from now, if you don't.

Three Steps to Single Blessedness.

Three steps are necessary to keep the chin single—exercise, creaming and tightening, and there's no stinting on any of these. Tomorrow we'll do plenty of exercising, creaming and tightening. In the meantime, take a good look at you jawline and prepare to "hold that line," if it is youthfully pleasing, or to coax and lift it back if it has dared to sag.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

SEASICKNESS.

THERE are a multitude of remedies for seasickness and carsickness. The laity have more of them than the physicians, and, what is more, they have more faith in their proposals.

The physicians have tried most of the drugs that seemed to promise anything, and with results that did not satisfy. The reason probably is that seasickness is an effect, and for it there is sometimes one cause, sometimes another, and sometimes several.

Probably the most important causes are those that relate to vision. People are told that keeping the eyes closed, or gazing at the horizon, or lying on the back, or leaning far backward and looking aloft are sure cures. Sometimes one of these procedures will work. Something tells us that we are more comfortable if we keep the eyes closed, and most of the sufferers do, without being told.

Next in importance are the ears, probably. Not the hearing part of these organs, but certain semicircular canals and the fluids and fine filaments in them. It is these canals which guide us in keeping right side up. The swaying of a ship, the roll of the waves, throw a great strain on the equilibrium apparatus in the semicircular canals. We can close the eyes and thus shut out sight of the tossing of the ship and the movement of the surface of the water, but shutting out the feel of it is not so easy.

In seasickness, dizziness precedes nausea and vomiting. A third factor is the digestive apparatus. Some cases are relieved and in some instances seasickness and carsickness can be prevented by attention to the digestive apparatus and no other procedure. In all cases the digestive apparatus plays a part, and if proper consideration is given it the symptoms are less troublesome. This group of procedures includes the following:

Attention to the bowels, but without free purgation. Some persons take compound cathartic pills or saline purges the night before going abroad. This kind of purgation will upset the appetite and make the stomach squeamish on land as well as on sea. Proper bowel action helps; improper action does harm.

No alcoholic beverages.

Either a temporary discontinuance of tobacco or a very material temporary decrease in indulgence.

The psychic factor is not to be overlooked. One of the best antidotes for seasickness is to have the right frame of mind. Anxiety and apprehension are products of seasickness. But when they are combined with eye causes, ear causes, digestive upsets, or improper diet the result is discomfort.

LEUCEMIA.

Mrs. H. T. writes:

1. Is any progress being made in the cure of leucemia?

2. Which is the more dangerous, lymphatic leucemia or the kind that affects the spleen especially?

3. What are the symptoms of each?

REPLY.

1. I don't think so. X-ray treatments decrease symptoms and interrupt the disease, but they do not cure.

2. As a rule the splenic kind is the more serious, though there are cases of lymphatic lucemia that progress very rapidly. More mistakes are made in the diagnosis of the lymphatic variety.

3. In both there is profound weakness and anemia and a great increase in the white blood cells. In the splenic kind the increase in white cells is the greater and the spleen is very large and heavy. In the lymphatic variety the lymph glands are enlarged. The special increase is in a small white cell called the lymphocyte.

NOT HEREDITARY.

J. D. R. writes:

1. Is acne hereditary?

2. I have had this trouble on my face for about fifteen years. It is clearing up gradually. Can this skin disease be cured, and by what method?

REPLY.

1. No.

2. Yes; in most cases by keeping the grease glands of the face well crupted.

Culbertson on Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON

484.

MASTERS OF BRIDGE.

EXPERTS are usually divided rather sharply in two categories —players and analysts. It is very rare to find master players who are also brilliant theorists.

Mr. Oswald Jacoby has until just recently been known chiefly as a player. Since his appointment as chairman of the technical committee of the United States Bridge Association he has proven in more ways than one that his skill is not confined entirely to mere playing.

Mr. Jacoby is possibly best known as having been partner to Mr. Sidney Lenz in the Culbertson-Lenz match of a year ago. He was also a member of "The Four Horsemen" team, which set such an enviable record in 1931. Upon his disassociation with this team he proceeded to prove that he was well able to win championships without his former teammates by annexing the team-of-four Challenge Trophy at Asbury Park, N. J., along with Messrs. Gottlieb, Lightner and Watson.

The following hand was played by him in this tournament and should show why he is regarded as one of the finest defensive players in the country.

Stearns

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
		1♡	1♠
Dbl.	Pass	2♡	Pass
3NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding does not call for much comment. North decided not to leave the one spade Double in, as his side was vulnerable and his opponents were not.

When Mr. Jacoby chose the spade Knave as his Opening lead, Mr. Stearns allowed this card to hold the trick as he placed Mr. Jacoby with at least two spades. Mr. Jacoby now decided that the hand called for some rather drastic defensive action, and immediately laid down the Queen of diamonds. Mr. Stearns went up with the Ace in Dummy, returned to his hand with a club and then led his heart. Mr. Jacoby now made his Ace immediately, estimating correctly that Declarer had only held one heart. His next lead was a diamond, and whichever card Mr. Stearns played he was down 2 tricks.

It is interesting to note that without the Queen-of-diamonds shift at the second trick the hand was a spread for five no-trump, and this result was actually obtained by Mr. Gottlieb, who played the South hand at the same contract at the other table.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

Chicago's Jobless To Parade Today

They hope to converge upon the City Hall at 10 a. m. tomorrow from three directions, to protest to the mayor the hunger "which stalks Chicago streets."

Police Commissioner James P. Allman has canceled departmental leaves. He plans to have most of the city's 6,000 officers along the line of march and in the loop, where the paraders will mass at noon. Allman said his men would permit an orderly march and that they would do their utmost to avoid trouble. All squad cars will be on the streets, with machine guns in the tonneaus. Roving platoons of officers will be armed with banana stalks, a favored weapon here for use on the heads of labor demonstrators.

ALEXANDRIA FILLING STATION IS HELD UP

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Gulf Refining filling station at Washington and Montgomery streets was held up about 9 o'clock last night by a lone robber and $16 taken. A much larger amount was in an inside compartment of the office safe and not disturbed.

L. A. Westbrook, a leaseholder of the filling station, was on duty when the hijacker, about 21 years old and well dressed, walked into the office, pulled a pistol and told Westbrook to "stick 'em up." The bandit then ordered Westbrook to open the safe, and took $16. This money was in a compartment just inside the outer door, there being an inner compartment with a separate combination.

After pocketing the money the man told Westbrook to lie down on the floor and stay there until he "came back and blew his horn." After about 2 minutes Westbrook ran to the telephone and called police headquarters. Westbrook was not certain whether the man was afoot or in a car.

K. L. Martin, who acts as manager, expressed the belief that the robber once worked for the Gulf Co., because he evidently knew that only the manager would have the combination of the inside safe, and therefore did not trouble to order that opened.

Westbrook said the bandit was nervous.

The Alexandria Rotary Club will be visited tomorrow by the district governor and the plans include a conference with all committee chairmen, prior to the luncheon at 12:30 o'clock. A pilgrimage to Mount Vernon will be made, to place a wreath on the tomb of Washington; a tour of Alexandria with inspection of the Alexandria Children's Home and Day Nursery, which is sponsored by the Rotary Club; and a pilgrimage to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Arlington National Cemetery.

While the Rotary luncheon is in progress, the Rotary Anna will have luncheon at the Anchorage, and at 2 o'clock will join the party bound for Mount Vernon. Robert L. May is chairman of transportation.

Alexandria Lodge No. 758, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, will hold an election party Tuesday, November 8, in connection with a social program, featuring an address by the grand exalted ruler, Judge Floyd E. Thompson, of Moline, Ill., over the radio. In addition election returns will be received.

E. J. Fleming, exalted ruler, is chairman of the committee on arrangements. Park A. Kersey, J. Owen Lynch, Robert L. May, A. T. Peake, H. D. Carter, J. E. Griesmer, M. P. Frasca, George W. Boyd, George W. Kimball, Herman Freidlander, O. A Phelps, Julian Chauncey, W. E. McCaffrey and W. E. Moore are the other members.

Arlington Ballot Leniency Is Asked

U. S. Chief Clerks Requested to Grant Leave to Voting Employes.

With several hundred Arlington County Federal employes having lost the opportunity to vote in the presidential election four years ago, L. C. MacPherson, chairman of the Arlington County Republican committee has made public the following letter to chief clerks of all Federal departments:

"Owing to the congestion at the polls between 7 and 9 a. m. many Federal employes were unable to cast their vote at the last election, due to the polls having closed before their returning to the county.

"With the polls closing at 5:01 p. m., there is grave danger of many Federal employes' votes not being cast.

"Recognizing this condition I would ask that all employes residing in Arlington County in your department, be permitted to report to work only after they have cast their ballots on the morning of election day."

Two Trees Dedicated In Honor of Churchmen

More than 100 members of St. George's Episcopal Church witnessed the dedication by the pastor, the Rev. Henry J. Miller, of two cedar trees to the memory of the late Maj. William M. King and Maj. David H. Rhodes, in the church grounds yesterday morning.

Inscriptions at the base of each tree contain the names of the two men. Maj. King who died last year in his ninety-ninth year, was a member of the vestry and an active worker in Boy Scout work. Maj. Rhodes for many years was senior warden of the church.

More Judges Necessary in Post Contest

There are more excellent milliners in Washington than are working in millinery shops. At least, the judges in the Irene Dunne Contest conducted by The Washington Post and RKO-Keith's are convinced of that.

For when these judges got together to pick the thirteen winners from the huge stack of designs submitted in the contest, they found so many good hats had been drawn by entrants that selection of the winner has been delayed until a second set of judges can help decide.

It is hoped that the winners can be announced tomorrow together with photographs of some of the best designs. The contestants drew small hats, large hats, picture hats and tam-o'-shanters; red hats, green hats, black hats and multi-colored hats until the judges were dizzy. However the winning designs will be good and it is just possible Irene Dunne will like one of the winners well enough to copy it.

Arlington Firemen to Meet.

The Arlington Fire Department will hold its monthly meeting at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the firehouse. The principal business will be nomination of officers. Election will be held at the December meeting.

SPEAKING OF HALLOWEEN!

Boris Karloff, as the spooky butler in "The Old Dark House," adds an eerie touch to the observance of All Hallows Eve at the Rialto Theater, where appropriate souvenirs will add to the gayety of patrons' celebration at tonight's special performance.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

SINCE he practically purloined the picture from the wide-eyed and somnolent Miss Tallulah Bankhead and the gangling and deep-throated Mr. Gary Cooper, and is importantly cast in "The Old Dark House," current at the Rialto, it is perhaps high time that something a little definite be known about this fotund and able English importation known as Mr. Charles Laughton. Besides that, Charles Laughton's career is interesting.

Charles Laughton

This young Britisher, although he appears to be middle-aged, is, as a matter of fact, only 32 years old. Six years ago he was a clark—clerk to you, fella—in his father's hotel. Mr. Hubbard Keavy, the alert and literate chief operative of our West Coast finger-in-the-wind department, permits Mr. Laughton to relate the circumstances of his early hire in the following words:

"My family owns a resort hotel in northern England and I help my mother and father run it. One of my brothers had been a farmer—a gentleman farmer, I believe you would call it in this country—and one day he said to me, 'There's no money in farming. I should like another business.'

"I said to him on the spot, 'You have another business. Take my job.' Which he did. And I promptly went to London and got in Komisarjevsky's Academy of Acting. I had a small part at first, but in a year I was playing leads."

As simple as that. And in two years Laughton was a star in the English theater, establishing a precedent for other stage-bitten youngsters.

It was Benn Levy's idea that Laughton come to America. Levy had sold his story of "Devil and the Deep" to Paramount, so at once phoned Laughton, asking if he'd come to the States to play a part in support of Miss Bankhead and Mr. Cooper. You know the answer.

Mr. Laughton has since signed a contract to appear in two films a year for a period of three years. Although he owns a newly built home in England, he may remain in Hollywood indefinitely. He will soon be seen in the role of Nero in Cecil B. De Mille's production of "The Sign of the Cross," although he insists this will be the last time he will appear as a "heavy," if he has anything to say about it—at least until after he has had an opportunity to do some comedy.

"I really can play comedy, you know," says Mr. Laughton. "Any fat man can!"

Laughton weighs only 187, but gives the impression of greater bulk because his poundage is not distributed over much length. Stubby, you might call him!

There is more to this "Maedchen in Uniform," to be given its screen premiere at the Auditorium Theater in Baltimore tonight, than immediately meets the eye. A stage version of the same play, presented under the title of "Children in Uniform," promises to be one of London's important winter plays. Presenting a tragedy of adolescent psychology, with its difficult theme handled with utmost delicacy, it is felt that it stands a fair chance to repeat, perhaps on a slightly smaller scale, the success of that tragedy of adult psychology, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

The play is by Christa Winsloe, with English adaptation by Barbara Burnham. It is directed by Leontine Sagan, who also directed the film and the German play.

"Maedchen in Uniform," it must surely be known by now, relates the story of a schoolgirl's innocent adoration of her teacher, amounting to positive infatuation. In deference to the motion picture public's antipathy toward tragic endings, even when they are the logical outgrowth of the pictured developments, the girl in the film is spared the suicide that marks the climacteric episode of the play.

This is the night when the amusement-seeker, with spirits buoyed high by the gayety of All Hallows Eve, can turn in under almost any brightly lighted marquee with the confident assurance of finding a special Halloween performance in progress around the midnight hour.

The Rialto, for instance, is throwing a pretentious party with favors, masks and all the accoutrements of a thoroughly gala evening. At Loew's Fox, instead of the customary reserved seat performance, the management has scheduled an extra show which will begin in the neighborhood of 11:30, with a rendition of an appropriate overture selection by the concert orchestra under the acrobatic baton of Phil Lampkin, F street's fork-handed genius of the conductor's rostrum. Later on, Duke Ellington and His Band will contribute to the real spirit of the occasion with a group of his weirdly syncopated dissonances. Down at the Arabian Nights Ballroom, gay pandemonium will be created by attractive souvenirs and characteristic funmakers in the hands of dancers who will be permitted to frolic from 9 p. m., until 2 in the "good morning" to the melodies of Meyer Davis' Washingtonians.

And that's the way it will be all over town, if your plans take in that much territory!

The inauguration of a season of six plays by the Clare Tree Major Children's Theater, at the National Theater November 19, takes on especial interest since the introductory bill will be "Sara Crewe," written by a former Washingtonian, Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett.

Mrs. Burnett took up her residence in Washington in 1877, with her husband and two sons. At first, the family occupied a two-story brick house on M street near Seventeenth, later moving to 813 Thirteenth street and finally to 1215 I street, where most of Mrs. Burnett's famous stories, including "Little Lord Fauntleroy," were written.

This group of adult professional players was seen in a performance of "Alice in Wonderland" at the National last April and won many friends at that time. Their second offering will be Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn," with "The Sleeping Beauty" scheduled as the third play in the series. Performances will be Saturday mornings at 10:30 o'clock.

Music lovers will find their anticipation of impending events heightened by the announcement that Issay Dobrowen, who will conduct the first concert of the Washington series by the Philharmonic Symphony of New York on December 13, in Constitution Hall, will arrive from Europe aboard the S. S. Hamburg, due in New York on Thursday of this week, November 3. Dobrowen also will conduct the first two concerts of the Philadelphia Orchestra series in the same auditorium on November 22 and December 20.

Last week, Daniel Frohman, internationally known theatrical producer and humanitarian, who will be heard locally in a reminiscent lecture in Constitution Hall on November 16, visited his home town of Sandusky, Ohio, and found himself virtually a stranger. And the town, now a city, was almost as strange to him.

The producer visited his birthplace, a little, tumbledown frame house, and made a futile effort to find some of the kids he played with as a boy. Most, if not all of them, have passed on.

Retracing his boyhood footsteps, Frohman visited the old show grounds where he "first got the show bug, carrying water for the elephants," and went to old Norman Hall, where his father, as a member of a German theatrical company, helped "put on shows."

But when the famous man spent several hours strolling the streets and sitting in a hotel lobby, no one recognized him as being one of the "home town boys who made good in the city."

Well, that's the way it goes, but the beneficiaries of the Actors Fund of America know who he is and will remember him to their dying day—have no fear about that!

Last Friday night, when James J. Majorell terminated his tour of duty as assistant manager of the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater, where he has been second in command for something over a year under Manager Tompkins, he was tendered a farewell party by his associates of the house staff. The rout was celebrated in the home of Miss Marguerite "Babe" Parker, senior cashier at the Met., who resides at 1910 K street. When Mr. Majorell left Washington Saturday for a fortnight's respite in New York prior to assuming new managerial duties in New Jersey, he carried tangible evidence of his former associates' regard in the form of a joint gift presented during the party's only solemn moment.

When one looks back to the early efforts of the National Symphony Orchestra and compares them with the superb program rendered before a large and tumultously enthusiastic audience in Constitutional Hall yesterday afternoon, with John Charles Thomas, barytone, as guest soloist, no other conclusion can be reached than that in Conductor Hans Kindler, Washington has an indefatigable creative artist and a dynamic personality, achieving miracles of coordination and refinement in his organization and wielding a tremendous cultural influence upon the music-loving public of the National Capital. He richly deserves the fine support his untiring labor has won.

Obviously a Kindler of the finer emotions!

HUNT FOR MISSING FARMER IS PUSHED

No Trace Found of Victim Who Wrote Gangsters Are Holding Him.

The whereabouts of Jacob Andes, 35-year-old Shenandoah Valley farmer, last night remained unknown as police of three States sought to unravel the mystery resulting when his wife received a letter saying he was held captive by New York gangsters.

The theory that Andes had been held up in the outskirts of Baltimore, beaten and left unconscious and then gone to New York in a semidazed condition was expressed last night by Commonwealth's Attorney Mamper, of Rockingham County, Andes' home.

Andes' truck was found last Monday by Ellicott City police between Ellicott City and Catonsville, a Baltimore suburb. There was no sign of a struggle or any bullet marks at the scene, Ellicott City authorities said.

Relatives of Andes came to Ellicott City and took the truck home last Friday. The receipt of the letter, saying Andes was kidnipped, was not made until Saturday when Sheriff Charles R. Frawley, of Rockingham County, sought the aid of Maryland and New York police in locating the missing farmer.

Mr. Earman said he did not believe that Andres was perpetrating a hoax when this possibility was suggested. He declared that the farmer's domestic life was harmonious and that he had four young children. The possibility of lost memory, resulting from a blow, however, was admitted.

Andes went to Baltimore ten days ago to sell a truckload of lambs, for which he is believed to have received about $300. In his letter he declared he was robbed of part of this cash and required medical attention. The doctor who he said treated him, is said to be in Europe at present.

Virginia Assault Suspect Arrested

William Normile, sought by Virginia authorities as a suspect in a criminal assault on a 20-year-old girl near Staunton, Va., was arrested Saturday with his brother, John, in a tourist home in Hyattsville, Md.

Normile was turned over to Staunton police last night. His brother was released. They were arrested by Policeman Ralph Brown, who was notified by the owner of the home after he had read the story of the assault in newspapers. Washington police are also investigating William's possiole connection with a local larceny.

A third brother, Walter, is being held in Virginia as a material witness to the alleged assault. The three brothers with their parents, two sisters and a colored maid were traveling from Ohio to Washington in three cars and two trailers when they stopped in the Virginia city. The assault is alleged to have occurred during this stop.

By NELSON B. BELL.

One might thumb back through the works of the composers of the lighter forms of musical entertainment from today to the time of Offenbach without turning up another such charming unification of story, score and voices as is presented by this completely admirable demonstration that America is not lagging in the field of operetta.

"The Cat and the Fiddle" is a deft and delightful blending of a consistently romantic and breezily humorous libretto with a beautifully orchestrated musical narrative that frequently carries forward the lilting story of the interrupted love of a young composer of serious and "significant" music for an alluring and evasive exponent of America's frothy and frivilous rhythms, without the use, or need, of dialogue. So thoroughly has Jerome Kern comprehended the full potentialities of his medium as an intelligible means of narration that we find his entrancing melodies and skillfully reprised refrains distributed with such impartiality among the figures of Mr. Harbach's dramatic structure as to create a surprisingly realistic effect, free from overemphasis of any character or any voice. While Mr. Harbach's book is a brittle and sophisticated example of smart writing for the theater, it is to the Kern score that the two acts are in the main indebted for their preeminent worth as an unfailing source of superlative diversion.

Without being too heavy for mass consumption, "The Cat and the Fiddle" is substantial musical fare. It is rollicking without being ribald; vivacious without being vulgar—a finely turned piece of expert craftmanship, abounding in gracious melodies, brisk in its change of scene and engaging in the quality of its performance. A model, in point of fact, upon which other composers and librettists might well fashion their future endeavors.

Without a chorus, in the sense of needlessly introduced lines of dancing girls and awkward young men, the two acts nevertheless present numerous stirring ensembles participated in by youthful and competent vocalists whose presence is amply justified by their importance to the development of the romantic story. There are, too, scenes of the operetta within the operetta, and an occasional fantasy, executed by a select group of Albertina Rasch dancers, to lend variety and piquancy to the movement of a plot that is never neglected any more than it is ever overstressed.

With so sturdy a foundation of book and score, it is, of course, necessary that there be voices in the cast. These there are in profusion. Bettina Hall, as the American girl studying in Brussels, who refuses to mutilate the score composed by the youth she has met on a bench in the market place, and Michael Bartlett, as the composer, are soprano and tenor abundantly capable of bringing fullest value to the haunting melodies that fall to their individual and joint lots—"The Breeze Kissed Your Hair," "Try to Forget," "She Didn't Say 'Yes'," "A New Love Is Old," "One Moment Alone" and "Ha! Cha! Cha!". Their work combines cultivated musicianship, spontaneity and romantic charm.

Bobby Jarvis and Doris Carson contribute generously to the comedy and dancing zest of the rehearsal scenes, as Shirley's brother and sister-in-law, with Odette Myrtil—giving rise by her versatile moods and talents to the title—and Arthur Treacher further adding to the laughability of many interludes. Jose Ruben is a finished and ingratiating impresario and Fred Walton a grotesque and amusing old studio drudge. George Meader, wandering through the piece as an itinerant troubadour, is a tower of strength to the sheer romance of many scenes with his "The Night Was Made for Love," and effective bits are done by Mavis Walsh, Katherine Fields, Gladys Gillen, as an impressionable slavey; Karl Theman and Antonio Diaz.

The settings are a conspicuous aid to the spirit of the work, and Conductor Jacques Rabiroff's direction of an excellent orchestra, that puts three pianos to uniquely eloquent uses, adds adroit shading to a matchless example of brilliant and distinguished theater.

"GIRLS FROM THE FOLLIES."—A Sam Raynor burlesque presentation, with Rae and Gertrude Reed, Anna Smith, Lee Hickman, Ray Parsons and Sam Raynor. Ann Corio guest star. Reviewed Sunday night by William L. Wright.

"Girls From the Follies," the surprise revue playing this popular house for the current week, is excellent entertainment. It boasts of good comedy, better than average singing and the best company of shapely girls to grace this stage this season.

Headed by the gorgeous Ann Corio, the most beautiful girl in burlesque, the other feminine members of the company suffer little by comparison. Miss Corio, as charming as ever, wins her audience quickly, and, after generous appearances, retires amid thunderous applause.

The Reed sisters, Rae and Gertrude, red-headed delights, never fail to score with their graceful dance classics. Their specialty in the Indian scene is particularly commendable. Next in order is Anna Smith, a pretty brunette, with long black curls. And where can you get a more exquisite eyeful than this picture of loveliness in her black lace dress?

The excellent chorus was lead in several picturesque but difficult dance routines by an attractive blonde, Eleanor Walent.

Dr. Brooks Issues Call For Business Meeting

Dr. R. W. Brooks, pastor of Lincoln Temple Congregational Church, announced yesterday a special business meeting of the entire congregation tomorrow night at 8 o'clock for the adoption of a new and progressive church program.

The call for the meeting was made through R. W. Wilkinson, chairman of the trustee board, and W. A. Baltimore, clerk.

MONDAY OCTOBER 31, 1932 SPORTS

HAGERTY IS NAMED G. U. COACH AS MILLS RESIGNS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

TOM MILLS has given up the ghost at Georgetown. This department can think of no more appropriate way to describe the decision of Mills to resign as head coach at the Hilltop. The odds against him were too great and the outlook was becoming no brighter in speedy fashion.

Tom Mills came to Georgetown in 1930 on the recommendation of Knute Rockne. At South Bend, Mills stated he was to be athletic director and head football coach, and it was presumed that he would act in both capacities. He was continually referred to as athletic director with no denials from the Hilltop, and the first intimation that the public had of the fact that he was not director of athletics was gleaned from the athletic department's stationery, which designated him simply as head coach.

Mills Surprised to Hear of Job.

I remember an incident two years ago that first convinced me that Mills was not happily wedded to his job at the Hilltop. This department figured indirectly in the appointment of John ("Clipper") Smith to the berth as head coach of North Carolina State in 1931. Smith at that time was Mills' assistant at Georgetown.

The first news that Mills received of Smith's appointment to the North Carolina State post he received from this department. It was a surprise to Mills that the North Carolina State job was open and there was more than a tinge of wistfulness to his voice as he recited the virtues of "Clipper" Smith as a coach and a fine fellow.

Mills would not have been reluctant to take the North Carolina State berth, I am sure. But the North Carolina authorities did not suspect that Mills would have listened to an offer.

Coach Liked Camp at Point Lookout.

As head coach of the team, Mills chose Point Lookout, Md., as the fall training camp of the squad in 1931, having been well pleased with the results obtained in training at the southern Maryland resort the previous season. Rehoboth Beach was suggested to him as another training base, a proposition which he vetoed, but that year the team trained at Rehoboth Beach.

Mills' material at Georgetown has steadily declined in point of caliber. Hilltop authorities chose this year to discontinue the general practice of alotting athletic scholarships to prep school athletes and the success of the teams has been directly affected. If, as Mills has said in his statement, Georgetown is dissatisfied with its football record, he alone can not be held responsible, although there has been no disposition by Georgetown to blame him.

Knute Rockne Knew His Football.

I have always believed from the day I first met the man that Mills was a capable coach, one of the finest ever at the head of a local college team, and destined to elevate football at Georgetown to a new plane. Certainly Knute Rockne knew whereof he spoke when he recommended Mills for the job. I always believed that Rockne knew his football.

Mills was quite the finest "copy" of any Washington football coach. Actor, lawyer, and with a leaning toward the literati before adopting coaching as his profession, Mills was pregnant with good newspaper stories. He gave to football the classic line about publicity. He'd swap the whole week's write-ups if his team's publicity on Sunday mornings were favorable, he said.

But I do think that it is purely coincidental that Georgetown has abandoned the Notre Dame system 24 hours after Pitt dealt the Rockne system its most stunning defeat in years.

Baltimore Golfer Gets Ace on 365-Yard Hole

Baltimore, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—What is believed to be one of the longest holes-in-one on record was made here today by W. D. Lamdin, of the Baltimore Country Club.

Lamdin joined the Hole-in-one Club on the 365-yard thirteenth, which is downhill from tee to green. The wind also favored the drive.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Heads bloody but unbowed, the Nation's football prognosticators were convalescing today from the season's most astonishing series of form reversals.

Notre Dame, Harvard, Stanford, Fordham, Chicago, North Carolina State and Dartmouth were just a few of the major machines which stalled completely on a Saturday which belonged strictly to the underdog.

As a result there was considerable shifting in the alignment of teams bidding for sectional championships. Basing the following ratings mostly on the won and lost records, the outstanding contenders in each of the major groups and conferences were:

EAST—Pitt and Colgate outstanging, with Brown, Columbia, Penn and Holy Cross also unbeaten.

BIG TEN—Michigan, the only unbeaten and untied team in conference competition with Purdue, a step behind.

PACIFIC COAST—Southern California and the University of California as Los Angeles.

SOUTH—Tennessee, Auburn, Virginia Poly and Louisiana State all unbeaten with the first two apparently the stronger.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN — Utah and Denver.

MISSOURI VALLEY—Oklahoma A. and M.

Triumph of Pitt Chief Surprise.

Standing out over all the rest of Saturday's amazing results was the sensational defeat of Notre Dame by the Pitt Panthers, 12 to 0. The Ramblers, touted as one of the greatest machines ever assembled at Notre Dame, started the game 3 to 1 favorites, but collapsed like a balloon pricked by a needle in the fourth quarter when Pitt unleashed a smashing offensive and scored two touchdowns within a minute of play while a partisan crowd of 65,000 roared in delight.

That entirely unexpected triumph boosted the Panthers into the forefront of the battle for national as well as Eastern honors. At the same time it gave the East not a little consolation for the defeats of Princeton by Michigan, 14-7; New York University by Purdue, 34-9; Syracuse by Michigan State, 27-13, and Georgetown by Detroit, 13-0. Along with Pitt, West Virginia and George Washington turned in surprisingly one-sided victories over Marquette and Iowa, respectively. West Virginia whipped Marquette, 34-7, and George Washington walloped Iowa, 21-6.

East's Unbeaten Ranks Depleted.

Harvard went down to decisive defeat at the hands of Brown, 14-0; Penn won from Navy by the same score; Columbia completed a Montgomery to Matal pass to beat Cornell, 6-0; Colgate trounced Penn State, 31-0, and Holy Cross defeated Catholic, 8-0, in other games affecting undefeated Eastern teams. At the same time Yale won its first victory of the season, a 6-0 triumph over Dartmouth, and Boston College upset a highly favored Fordham outfit, 3-0.

With the leader, Michigan, playing an intersectional game, Big Ten interest swung to Bob Zuppke's Illinois eleven, which handed Chicago its first defeat, 13-7, with a sensational passing attack. Ohio State and Wisconsin played a 7-7 tie, and Minnesota, principal stumbling block of Michigan's hope for clear title to the conference championship, beat Northwestern, 7-0, but the score failed to show the Gophers' tremendous superiority on the attack.

California Moves Into Lead.

The University of California at Los Angeles moved up to the top of the Pacific Coast standings along with Southern California by handing Stanford a 13-6 beating. The Bruins, as well as Southern California, now are conceded an excellent chance to finish their conference slate undefeated.

Texas whipped Southern Methodist, 14-6, and Texas Christian won from Baylor, 27-0, in the Southwest, and their meeting on November 11 may well decide the title. Rice, beaten only by Texas, defeated Creighton, 41-7, in an intersectional game while Texas A. and M. was bowing to Centenary, 7-0.

Auburn and Tennessee both ran into tough competition in the Southern conference, but finally managed to keep their slates clear. Auburn trailed Mississippi, 7-0, going into the fourth period, but put on a belated rush to win, 14-7.

A field goal in the last three minutes of play enabled Tennessee to top Duke, 16-13. Louisiana State and

IRVINGTON 6-0 VICTOR OVER MOHAWKS

Recovered Blocked Punt Behind Goal Nets Only Score.

TWO good defensive teams locked horns at Griffith Stadium yesterday and it seemed as though a scoreless tie would be the result, but fate decreed otherwise and the Mohawks went down to a 6-0 defeat at the hands of the Irvington eleven, of Baltimore

ATTRACTIVE CHARITY CARD TODAY OPENS PIMLICO MEET

Kerry Patch In Juvenile Feature

Futurity on Saturday, Worth $40,000, Is Highlight of Meet.

Hanford Far Ahead of Jockeys Riding at Laurel.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

STOPS at Pimlico and Bowie remain on the itinerary of the thoroughbreds in their swing through Maryland, and the twelve-day meeting at the historic Hilltop course, once near Baltimore but now surrounded by the city, opens today. As has been the custom, Gov. Albert Ritchie's unemployment fund will benefit from the proceeds of the program. Despite the charity day, Pimlico is offering a high-class card, with an allowance race and a handicap scheduled. Overnight entries reveal full fields.

Although Pimlico has shaved some of its fixtures, a generous outlay of cash awaits the winning owners during the meeting. The big bag of gold, as well as the principal honor of the two-week stand, is centered in the $40,000 added Pimlico Futurity, to be run next Saturday.

Last Two Futurities Won by Whitney.

The race has been won twice in a row by C. V. Whitney representatives. Equipoise scored in 1930 and Top Flight last year. Workman had the mount on both. Those that face the post—and another big field is the prospect—will be the survivors of 2,078 colts and fillies nominated for the event in January of 1930.

The other high spots of the meeting are the $5,000 added Bowie Handicap, on November 8; the $1,500 Master of Fox Hounds Steeplechase for hunters, on November 9; the $5,000 added Walden Handicap, on November 11, and the $10,000 added Riggs Handicap on the closing Saturday.

Overnight purses during the meeting will range from $1,000 to $2,500.

For the opening day's program, Pimlico offers the Pikesville Purse, for 2-year-olds, a mile and 70 yards event, which has drawn Kerry Patch, winner of the Belmont Futurity; Repaid, Fingal and Projectile, upset winner at Laurel.

The fifth race has drawn some of the outstanding sprinters in the East, with Fairbypair, Halcyon, Flagstone and Microphone named for the 6-furlong dash. The program stands out as the best charity day card offered in Maryland.

Hanford Far Ahead Of Laurel Jockeys.

Buddy Hanford has a wide margin in the race for the leading jockey honors at Laurel. The smiling little pilot came home with 23 winners during the meeting, placed 12 times, and had an equal number of thirds. His nearest rival was Bobby Jones, with 14 winners. Others among the leaders were: Gilbert, 12; Bejshak, 8; Callahan, 7; Meade, 7; Elston, 6; Garner, 6, and Malley, 6.

Hank Mills seems secure in the competition for the Nation's leading number of winners. The little fellow has had 826 mounts this year and has 180 winners, 147 seconds and 131 thirds. George Elston seemed headed for the top with his sensational riding at Latonia and was only 12 winners behind Mills, at 168, when he was injured. Johnny Gilbert has a chance to catch the Hank, but must pick up 16 winners during Pimlico and Bowie. On the national list, the other leaders are: Coucci, 162; Wright (now at Tanforan), 145; Hanford, 136; Robertson, 127; G. Smith, 115; Meade, 114; Jones, 110.

Sonny Workman, who has had less than half the mounts of the leaders, has ridden 86 winners, 47 seconds and 55 thirds. However, he leads ace riders in percentage of winning mounts, with a mark of .24. Mills and Elston have .22; Gilbert, Coucci and Robertson .20 and Hanford .18.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: PIMLICO RACE TRACK.

Back to the Hilltop and primed for another battle. Laurel was no happy hunting ground for the selectors, principally due to the uncertain track. Here we're getting a brand new deal and we expect to make the most of it. Pardon me, friend, if I hark back to the Washington Handicap. I believe the public deserves a better break when it backs a horse like Equipoise down to even money. The Whitney star is a notoriously bad actor at the stalls and invariably ends up by being placed on the outside. Why not take him to the outside of the field the first time that he balks at entering the stall? Saturday, with 129 pounds up, Equipoise gave himself a beating and took a beating from the ground men for 9 minutes before Starter Milton waved him to the outside fence. That's today's lesson. BILL.

FIRST RACE—IDLE STEFAN has been to the races only once, but gave a good account of himself. Finished four lengths behind the winner in a good field. May come back with a better race. PRETTY WISE ran well last out. LADY TOURNAMENT showed a world of speed at Marlboro. If there is an upset, this miss may turn the trick.

SECOND RACE—MOVE FASTER was a trifle short last out when sent to the post for a killing. Looks like this one will stick it out today in this maiden field. BLONDISH appears to be next best. McDONALD H. one that I watched closely on the half-milers, is in a spot that may suit him. A money chance.

THIRD RACE—WE DUN IT comes down from New York after some good races. Looks as though young Bellizzi will have this mount. Gets the top from me. HACKEY H loves the track and has been prepared for a clean-up. QUORUM for the show.

FOURTH RACE—FINGAL is perhaps a much better juvenile than the majority of race fans are aware. Will have plenty of time in this distance race to prepare for the closing rush. Asking a lot to make him beat REPAID and KERRY PATCH, but I believe the handwriting is on the wall and at about 6 to 1.

FIFTH RACE—FLAGSTONE gets a nice pull in the weights here and is likely to draw Hanford for the saddle. This fellow is a stout finisher and has worked smartly at the sprint distance. If he is beaten, HALCYON may do it. MICROPHONE evidently is not himself if that last is to be believed.

SIXTH RACE—This appears to be the right company for a BUBOLA victory. GRAND ACRE has a world of speed and is dangerous. THURSDAY'S New York races were fair.

SEVENTH RACE—MARGARET MC will find a track more to her liking today and may take the measure of HOME WORK and GAY PARTY.

MARIONS AND MARYLAND A. C. WIN

Gunners Beaten, 6-0; Mercury Bows by 12-0 in League.

MARION ATHLETIC CLUB gridders increased their lead in the race for unlimited honors in the Independent League by nosing out the Seamen Gunners, 6 to 0, in an exciting game yesterday at Gonzaga Stadium. It was the third consecutive league victory for the big Green eleven.

The Marions scored late in the fourth period on a blocked kick, "Hike" Licarione recovering the ball behind the Tars' goal line. Ed Winters, a tackle, broke through to block the punt.

Twice in the final period the eventual winners threatened their opponents' goal. The first drive came to a halt on the 1-yard line, and the second reached the 10-yard strip before the Gunners could muster enough strength to repel the invasion.

Gunners Threaten On Passes.

A well executed forward passing attack in the last period almost enabled the Gunners to tie the score. Sivico took several flat passes over the line from Lamont for long gains, but the Marions checked the advance before the danger zone had been reached.

Jenkins blocked Suit's punt in the first period of the Maryland-Mercury fray, Ball recovering for Maryland behind the Mercury goal line. The play followed a Maryland drive from midfield which was halted on the 5-yard line.

Ed Radtke heaved a 25-yard pass to Butler for the second and last touchdown. The suburban club completely outplayed its opponent, registering 14 first downs to 3 for the Wingfeet.

Suit made a beautiful run of 65 yards in the third period for Mercury, getting as far as Maryland's 8-yard line before being dragged down from behind. Mercury, however, was unable to negotiate the remaining distance to scoring territory.

squads in Washington, Georgetown, one year ahead of the agreement passed by the Middle Atlantic Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, has given up the practice of dispensing athletic scholarships. The effect on the 1933 schedule, now being compiled, will be marked. One of the traditional games which will be missing is the N. Y. U. tussle.

ITT STOCK BOOSTED BY DEFEAT OF IRISH

Virginia Poly, the only other teams unbeaten within the conference, turned in easy victories, Louisiana over Kewanee, 38-0, and Virginia Poly over Washington and Lee, 32-6. Tulane stopped South Carolina's winning streak, 6-0, and North Carolina State lost its first conference game to North Carolina, 13-0. Vanderbilt, Alabama, Maryland and Georgia were other conference winners.

Big Six conference action was limited to Nebraska's 6-0 victory over Kansas State as Oklahoma bowed to Oklahoma A. and M., 7-6, and Missouri lost to Washington University, 14-8, in intersectional games with the Missouri Valley Conference.

Utah brushed aside the Utah Aggies, 16-0, in the Rocky Mountain Conference race, while the defeat of the Colorado Aggies by Colorado College, 3-0, left Denver the only threat to Utah's supremacy. Denver has been tied but not beaten in conference competition.

D. C. COLLEGE TEAMS GAIN NEW PRESTIGE

Maryland all but assured the financial success of its game against Vanderbilt next Saturday at Griffith Stadium by beating V. M. I., 12-7, in a fine game, marked by the heroic return of Ray Poppelman to the squad. Of the foes who come to Washington this week-end, Vanderbilt is perhaps the best known. Ever a power in the Southern Conference, Vandy this year has beaten Mercer, North Carolina University, Western Kentucky, Georgia and tied Tulane, a notable record, and one that bodes little good for Maryland. Incidently, Vanderbilt beat Maryland last year, 39-12.

North Dakota, G. W.'s opponent, has a fine record this year, showing wins over North Dakota U., both South Dakotas, Oklahoma City U. and Moorhead Teachers. It is unbeaten. It ended N. D. U.'s four-year reign over that territory this year, and plays Army after meeting the Colonials.

Wake Forest is a team against which Catholic University should scintillate. A good, big, rugged club, Wake Forest will make the Cards step to the limit in an effort to start another winning streak.

The Georgetown - West Virginia game, at Morgantown next Saturday, will be eagerly awaited by local followers of the game, since the locals will be guided for the first time by new coaches.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

THE eve of All Saints' Day, a Christian holiday, was celebrated October 31, 2,000 years before the birth of Christ, as the New Year's Day of the ancient Celts. Their celebration was one based on superstition and marked by strange rituals by which they sought to foretell events of the coming year.

With the spread of of Christianity the church designated a day to be celebrated as All Saints' Day which, following the usual custom of supplanting older holidays with church holidays, was to supplant the Druid New Year's Day, November 1. Although the name was changed, the date remained the same and, to a large extent, the manner of observance was not altered.

Halloween customs of today reflect more of the ancient pagan rites than the church observance. The well-known practice of bobbing for apples is of ancient Scotch origin. The Highlanders believed that a person who could snap apples out of a pan of water was to be lucky during the year to come. The Halloween bonfire is an old Irish custom, where many pagan superstitions centered about a fire.

Today's window soaping and gate removing by gangs of young boys is youth's way of keeping alive the superstitions that once were general—that ghosts walked on Halloween.

Compared to its size, the grasshopper's kick is much more powerful than that of a mule. A mule would have some trouble kicking a dead weight equal to its own weight very far; a grasshopper can send a good-sized piece of wood many times its own length.

WASHINGTON CLERK DROWNED TRYING TO SWIM SHENANDOAH

Joseph A. Furbershaw Sinks to Death as Rescue Attempts Fail.

The placid waters of the Shenandoah River, near Overall, Va., yesterday claimed the life of Joseph A. Furbershaw, 40-year-old clerk in the United States Department of Commerce.

Furbershaw, with a party of friends, left Washington late Saturday to spend the week-end at a river cottage near Overall. A fishing party was organized, and, in a small boat, Furbershaw set out with his friends.

Sinks Suddenly.

After fishing for some time, Furbershaw decided to leave the boat and swim to shore. Witnesses declared he had reached midstream when he suddenly disappeared beneath the water. He soon reappeared, shouting for help. F. H. Smith, also of Washington, a member of the party, dived into the water and atempted to rescue the drowning man.

Body Recovered.

Before aid could reach Furbershaw, bowever, he sank for the last time. The river was dragged for more than an hour before the body was recovered.

Furbershaw resided at 4814 Illinois avenue northwest. Persons there last night refused to discuss his death. He is said to have a brother and two sisters.

Dr. D. M. Kipps, coroner of Warren County, Va., issued a certificate of accidental death.

Bloomingdale Society Reelects All Officers

Election of officers of the Bloomingdale Civic Association, held yesterday at the Tabor Presbyterian Church, resulted in the retention of Mrs. Jacqueline Cuney as president; John E. Hall, Joseph G. Logan and Samuel D. Matthews, vice presidents; Edith M. Matthews, recording secretary; Edward F. Harris, corresponding secretary; Edward W. Crump, treasurer; R. A. Fairley, chaplain; Guy Tinner, sergeant at arms.

Delegates to the Federation of Civic Associations named were Edward F. Harris, Samuel Matthews, Mrs. Cuney, J. E. Hall and Guy Tinner, with E. M. Matthews, Corelia H. Johnson, W. A. Lee, A. R. Ore and Lloyd G. Cuney as alternates.

Man, 25, Stabbed Twice; Wife Arrested as Drunk

Irving Blanton, 25, of 616 Sixth street northwest, was stabbed twice in the abdomen during an altercation at 461 H street northwest yesterday. His wife, Ethel Blanton, 20, who was standing in front of the H street address when police arrived, was charged with being drunk.

Police are seeking Sid Stockard, 30, of 473 H street northwest, in connection with the stabbing. Blanton was taken to Emergency Hospital, where his condition is undetermined.

CONFESSION MADE IN FATAL STABBING

Statement of Suspect Clears Up Mysterious Attack on Walter Garner.

A charge of murder was placed against George Alfred Gaither, 20, colored, of 206 I street southwest, who last night confessed, according to police, to the fatal stabbing of Walter Garner, 32, of 27 Fifteenth street southeast, during an altercation at 487 Cullinane court southwest.

The quarrel leading to the murder was said by Gaither to have started when a colored girl in the house attempted to stop Garner from leaving and he intervened. Garner, although stabbed several times in the body and once in the heart, left the house and drove to his home, where his wife called the Casualty Hospital ambulance.

According to police, Frank E. Ricker, 27, of 1635 U street southeast, accompanied Garner to the house, but left before the trouble started. Several colored witnesses to the murder, offered their testimony, corroborating Gaither's confession.

Detective Sergts. John Dalglish, Floyd Truscott, and Dennis Murphy, investigating the fatal stabbing, arrested Gaither and obtained his statement of guilt. Garner died at Casualty Hospital Friday afternoon without naming his assailant. He told police he was stabbed somewhere on Anacostia Bridge.

Bulletin of Catholic U. To Resume Publication

Publication of the Catholic University Bulletin will be resumed in November after several years discontinuance, with the Right Rev. James H. Ryan, rector of the institution, as editor, and the Rev. Dr. Maurice S. Sheehy, managing editor.

The Bulletin "will be devoted principally to the researches and scholarly publications which affect the spiritual values of man's life," it was announced.

Press Building Unit Joined by Preston

Union Trust Head Added to Bondholders' Protective Group.

Ord Preston, president of the Union Trust Co., and formerly president of the Washington Gas Light Co., has been added to the membership of the bondholders' protective committee of the National Press Building Corporation, it was announced last night by George Ramsey, chairman of the committee.

This gives the committee a total membership of five. The committee has been formed to protect the interests of the holders of the bonds and to negotiate a plan for the financial reorganization of the corporation.

Mr. Ramsey wishes to emphasize that the committee has no connection with any other group formed for the same purpose. The committee has issued a call for the deposit of the bonds. Certificates of deposit will be issued by the Chase National Bank, of New York, the depository.

TRAFFIC TOLL

Though showing a slight decrease in number, traffic accidents this year have been more serious in character as delineated by the death count of 101 to date, as compared with 66 for the similar period last year.

Injuries recorded carry out this indication, 211 more nonfatal casualties having occurred, as compared with last year to date. The statistics, showing the decrease in accidents, but upturn in deaths and injuries, are:

	1931.	1932.
Deaths	66	101
Injuries	2,991	3,202
Accidents	7,008	6,603

PRIEST SAYS CHARITY OFTEN CLOAKS SINS

Father Burke Asserts Real Love of Neighbor Should Be Basis of Gifts.

Speaking on charity, the Very Rev. Raphael M. Burke, O. P., yesterday reminded his congregation at St. Dominic's Catholic Church, Sixth and E streets southwest, that although there was never before such an opportunity for gifts to charitable organizations, charity "covers a multitude of sins."

"Service to humanity in our day," Father Burke explained, "has been accepted by many as a substitute for the creeds of old. We must admit that our Community Chest, Welfare Association, and Associated Charities have many natural advantages, but they are not necessarily an expression of charity in the Christian sense."

Christian charity teaches man to love his neighbor as Christ would have done, not because he can be of particular help at a later time, nor because of his talents, tastes or other magnetic influences, but purely because the neighbor is a child of God.

"He who would be content to let his charity for his neighbor find expression in deeds alone neglects the finer and nobler ways by which love of a neighbor should be manifested," the minister continued.

Kindness is the refined expression of charity and real kindness is born of the mind and heart, he said.

When man is guilty of an unkind thought, such as ascribing or attributing some base motive to his neighbor, Father Burke said, he contributes to the Community Chest that he may get his name in the paper. "Man not only sins against charity, but against justice," he continued. "Thoughts are the father of words and also of deeds. Here the speaker quoted St. Paul: "Charity thinketh no evil, beareth all things, and believeth all things of our needy brother."

"The wealthy must take upon themselves their responsibilities as well as their privileges and while it must be admitted on the one hand that they are to be allowed the enjoyment of the fruits of their earthly possessions, it must be acknowledged on the other that what they possess is given to them by Almighty God, not that they might live in luxury, but that they might distribute all their surplus goods to the poor," he concluded.

POPULATION GROWTH IN RUSSIA STRESSED

Dr. Kinsman, of American University, Sees World Problem in Gains.

"The population of Russia is being increased at a rate greater than that of all other European countries combined, creating one of the most significant present-day political, economic and military problems in world relations," Dr. Delos O. Kinsman, professor of Economics at American University told the Adult Forum of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church yesterday morning.

Speaking on "An Economist's Observation in Russia," Dr. Kinsman, who has recently returned from Russia, said that the population of that country was being increased at the rate of 10,000 persons a day.

"All that can be done," the speaker continued, "is being done to increase the Russian population, and the project being encouraged and fostered by the officials in control of the government. * * *

"They (the Soviet state) are doing the same thing that Mussolini is doing, but more vigorously. * * *

"Every time a child is born in this country it means an additional worker, and Russia needs workers. Everything possible is being done for the benefit of the children, but they are making it very easy to break up the home.

"They have a complete state governmental organization to take care of all the children in a family," Dr. Kinsman explained. "When the husband or wife applies for a divorce, the state must have a guarantee that the children will be adequately provided for, and until the state is assured of that, the divorce is not granted."

Women in History Praised in Sermon

Rev. George Strohaver Is Chief Speaker on Radio Hour.

The Rev. George Strohaver, of Georgetown University, in his discourse on the Washington Catholic Radio Hour yesterday, "The Feast of Christ the King," declared that the institution of this recently appointed feast was never needed more than today. He deplored the modern world's persistence in doing away with Christ in its books, colleges, schools, universities and homes as though He were some effete influence of a distant past.

Father Strohaven said: "Tell me of a nation's women and I'll tell you of that nation's men. Time and changing fortunes have never yet disproved that; the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world. The hope of the kingdom of Christ in America rests with America's Catholic women. The destinies of the Nation are in your hands, and if King Christ is to come into His own, it will be because you are true to the high ideals you have set before you."

The service was under direction of the Rev. Francis J. Hurney, pastor of the Immaculate Conception Church. Under direction of Harry Wheaton Howard, organist, the music of the service included as soloists Florence Yocum, soprano; Fred Nolan, baritone; Ann Arlen, violinist, and the boys' sanctuary choir.

BISHOP OF EXETER SEES WORLD PEACE AS AMERICAN GOAL

Lord William Cecil Urges International Good Will at Cathedral.

Every nation has a mission to fulfill, America's being to uphold the great ideals implanted by her founders. This was the message offered by the Right Rev. Lord William Gascoyne Cecil, Bishop of Exeter, in a sermon on international good will and peace at the Washington Cathedral yesterday morning.

Congregations numbering more than a thousand persons each heard the British peer yesterday as he began a series of sermons in behalf of the committee on the interchange of preachers between the United States, Great Britain, and France.

The speaker in delivering his opening sermon on international peace, spoke from experience, having given three of his four sons to England in the World War, and suffered the hardships of air raids over his own home.

The sermon was delivered upon the occasion of the celebration of the Holy Communion.

Epiphany Church Packed.

The night service was held at the downtown Church of the Epiphany. Before a house packed to the overflow the Bishop of Exeter was introduced by the pastor, the Rev. Ze Barney T. Phillips.

Laboring under the handicap of a heavy cold, the elderly white-robed bishop climbed slowly to the chancel and read his text from the Gospel of St. Luke: "And it came to pass * * * he steadfastly set his face toward Jerusalem."

Is patriotism wrong? Reading on in the text the minister showed that Christ rebuked his disciples when James and John attempted to say a prayer against those who spoke ill of the Jewish nation.

"Was Christ not patriotic?" the Bishop continued. "No. Christ was a patriot. Recall how he stood on the hilltop above the capital city and, looking down, wept as he cried: 'Jerusalem, Jerusalem, how oft would I have gathered thee under my wing, even as a hen gathereth her brood under her wing, and ye would not.'"

Christianity Saves Culture.

"There have been many civilizations in the history of the world—the Roman, Chinese, Indian, Mohammedan, but the great Western civilization has survived them all. And why? he asked. "Because it is a civilization of Christianity.

"But there is an encroaching disease, that threatens to undermine the very foundations of this great civilization: Lack of unity—international disagreement. Even the smallest of living creatures realizes that there must be unity, yet the nations of the world are forgetting it.

"Christ is leading us to a greater unity," the bishop continued. "How different things would be if it could be said to France: 'If you do this you harm Germany,' and have France yield, that her neighbor might not be harmed. But this can not be. Why? We are not following the teachings of Christ. May this great Nation (America) be the one to lead the world back to Christ."

Dr. Bohanan Advocates Church Nonpartisanism

Taking for his text "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's," Dr. Franklin J. Bohanan, rector of St. Paul's Rock Creek Episcopal Church, declared that the Christian church is not concerned with policies and methods of Government, but with the fundamental principles, and that therefore the church should be devoid of all partisanism. The details of Government are far too complicated and hard to get at for the church to take any side. In the coming election every Christian individual will be called upon to fulfill his civic responsibility to the Government, which may be compared to his "tribute to Ceasar."

"There are different policies and methods being advocated," he said, "and it is a matter for the individual to decide what method to apply and the church must recognize that this is a tribute due 'Caesar.'"

BuildingOnce Used By B. E. F. Is Razed

Yields Under Pressure of Crane After Week of Pounding.

The old automobile building on the south side of Pennsylvania avenue northwest, above Third street, which formed the front line in the eviction of the B. E. F., collapsed at 2:30 p. m. yesterday under the persuasion of a crane operated by a wrecking company.

The structure, in which many of the veterans lived, is now a mass of broken concrete and twisted steel. A wrecking crew had been endeavoring to weaken the building for the past week. Early yesterday afternoon it gave the first sign of weakening. Under the blows of a 2,000-pound crane the concrete pillars sagged. Then a fire was built, solid steel surrendered and the building crumbled.

THOMAS, BARYTONE, HAILED AT CONCERT BY LARGE AUDIENCE

Sings Number of Encores on Program of National Symphony.

John Charles Thomas, golden voiced American barytone, literally "stopped the show" at the first popular Sunday concert of the National Symphony Orchestra in Constitution Hall yesterday when the large audience would not permit the program to proceed until Thomas had sung a number of encores. One of the most enthusiastic audiences seen in Washington this season heaped ovation upon ovation on Thomas after he had sung his announced numbers on the comprehensive program.

Hans Kindler, conductor of the orchestra, appreciating the recognition of the soloist of the afternoon, let the audience have its own way until Thomas responded again and again to the encores. Many of the musicians in the orchestra joined in the plaudits, beating their bows against their music stands or clapping their hands vigorously, a section of the applause which seemed particularly pleasing to Mr. Thomas.

Heard By Many Friends.

The soloist was in admirable voice and opened his portion of the program with the aria, "Eri Tu," from Verdi's "Masked Ball," giving opportunity for the display of his distinct operatic gifts which have been heightened through his European operatic experiences. The artistry, the balanced excellence and the beautiful tone qualities of this presentation enchanted the audience. Among those who heard him were many of his personal friends from nearby Maryland, where he was born, who had journeyed up to Washington to hear this native son give such good account of himself in the musical world.

Hans Kindler and his musical men won their full share of the afternoon's glory in the spirited playing of several orchestral numbers. Weber's "Overture to Oberon" made a stirring opening number and Respighi himself would have been proud of the Washingtonian's playing of his lovely, fantasy in harmonious measures, "The Pines of Rome." Into each movement Mr. Kindler read a vivid interpretation and the growing ability of the orchestra to rise to really unusual heights of good playing was shown in this number. It has been played in Washington by other orchestras, but seldom as effectively as yesterday. Mr. Kindler is to be congratulated on its rendition and that it pleased the audience was proven by the plaudits which caused the leader and his men to bow their acknowledgements.

Numbers By Orchestra.

The orchestra's contribution to the program was concluded by two selections by Tschaikowsky; "Andante Cantabile from String Quartet No. 1 in D," and the dainty singing "Polonaise," from "Eugene Onegin." The excellent ensemble tone, the spirited attack and the general unified effect of the orchestra were maintained in both of these numbers.

The songs sung by Mr. Thomas, aside from his generous encore numbers, included "Gebet," Joseph Marx; "O Liebliche Wagen," Brahms; "Waltz," by Arensky-Kosher; a rollicking song, "Sailormen," written for Mr. Thomas by the composer, Jacques Wolfe, and a gay little ballad, "When I Think Upon the Maidens," by Michael Head. Mr. Lester Hodges, at the piano, was a splendid aid to Mr. Thomas.

Ill Health Blamed As Man Takes Life

Prolonged ill health yesterday caused Gus Kosack, 58, retired paperhanger, to take his life by inhaling illuminating gas in his home at 937 Longfellow street northwest, while his wife attended church services.

Mrs. Kosack, returning home shortly after 9 o'clock, noted the odor of gas and summoned neighbors and police. Her husband was found in the kitchen, his bathrobe forming an improvised tent over his head, slumped over the gas stove on which all jets were open.

Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide. Funeral arrangements were incomplete last night. Police said Kosack had been unable to work for a long time because of ill health.

SCHOOLS CELEBRATE 125TH ANNIVERSARY

More Than 500 Attend Program at Ingram Congregational Church.

More than 500 adults and high school students attended the celebration of the 125th anniversary of the District of Columbia Public Schools at the Ingram Memorial Congregational Church, Massachusetts avenue and Tenth street northeast, last night.

Guests of honor included Mrs. Henry G. Doyle, vice president of the Board of Education; Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent of public schools, and principals and teachers of 30 Washington schools.

Speakers of the evening were Mrs. Florence H. Rogers, supervising principal of the sixth district, who spoke on the elementary schools of Washington; Mrs. Agnes L. Kinnear, principal of the Elliot Junior High School; Charles Hart, principal of Eastern High School, and Dr. E. C. Higbie, president of Wilson Teachers College.

Frederick Vining Fisher, pastor of the church, presided and opened the meeting with an address of welcome.

Entertainment was furnished by the United High School and Junior High School Chorus, and the Eastern High School student orchestra.

Following the celebration program, the guests were conducted on a tour through the various recreational rooms in the church building.

CAPITAL IS PREPARED FOR CELEBRATION OF HALLOWEEN TONIGHT

Costume Parade and Street Dance on Constitution Avenue Planned.

Halloween, annual field day for witches and goblins, will be celebrated in Washington tonight with a gala parade and a street dance on Constitution avenue.

This celebration will be the second of its kind ever held in Washington on Halloween. A parade and dance were held last year and the success of both prompted the sponsors, the Greater National Capital committee, to repeat the festivities this year in cooperation with the District Bicentennial Commission.

Route of Parade.

The parade will start at 7:30 p. m. from Pennsylvania avenue and Four-and-a-half street northwest. It will then move up Pennsylvania avenue to Fifteenth street, and thence to Constitution avenue, where the floats and marchers will be reviewed by judges and other officials at Sixteenth street and Constitution avenue. Thirty prizes will be awarded.

The dance will begin at 9 p. m. on Constitution avenue between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets. Amplifiers will broadcast the music and spotlights will illuminate the crowd. Grandstands will be erected on either side of the dancing area.

Gen. Stephan to Lead.

More than 100 units including a number of bands will make up the parade, to be led by Maj. Gen. Ayton Stephan. More than 200 policemen have been assigned to protect the crowd and handle traffic.

Halloween, as all boys and girls who will go forth tonight in mask and costumes should know, was observed originally as the vigil of All Saint's Day. It was designated as "witches night" on the old Celtic calendar, and the country folk of Ireland still maintain that spirits walk abroad on this night.

1,200 Police to Preserve Order During Celebration

Kids who have heard the wild Halloween stories of the days when pa was a boy, will do well to remember that in those times there weren't 1,200 police to dog their steps, while they were "h'isting the cow up to the school belfrey."

In an order to members of the force yesterday, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, instructed the department to overlook innocent pranks, but lifting the back yard gate, and perching water buckets over the front door of some neighbor is banned in the police order.

Motorcycle men and automobile patrols were instructed to be particularly active to prevent the destruction of street lamps, and to protect persons from annoyance, insult and property damage. Also the ringing of door bells, the throwing of flour and rowdyism of any kind will be prohibited.

Special details of police will be placed in downtown areas to take care of traffic congestion. All leaves of members of the force for the day has been canceled.

Intruders Return to Scene Of Holdup of Pharmacist

The pharmacy of Dr. Leo Diegelman, at 1816 New Hampshire avenue, was broken into yesterday, and police suspect the same bandits who held up Dr. Diegelman several days ago and bound him with adhesive tape they took from the store shelves. Nothing was obtained in yesterday's depredation.

Thirteen other cases, in which robbers took loot valued at several hundred dollars, were reported to police.

Window smashers broke into two stores on Seventh street and looted the premises of valuable merchandise. Al Blumberg, manager of a clothing store at 611 Seventh street northwest, reported that the glass window in the door of the establishment was smashed by a brick early yesterday and $450 worth of clothing stolen.

Mayer Dodek, proprietor of a clothing store at 1520 Seventh street, reported that thieves broke the window of the store and stole a quantity of clothing.

Thieves cut a panel in the rear door of a gasoline station at 720 Rhode Island avenue northeast, and stole about 300 3-cent stamps, the keys to all the gas pumps and a quantity of automobile tools.

Among the other larcenies reported were: Theft of life preservers and a phonograph from a houseboat belonging to Julius Wanner, of 3800 K street northwest; a quantity of clothing stolen from the automobile of Robert E. Kurtz, of Glen Allen, Va., and razor blades and cigarettes stolen from a store at 2305 Eighteenth street northwest.

Coolidge Medal Awarded To Cobbett for His Music

Walter Wilson Cobbett, of London, England, 86-year-old inventor, composer and author, was awarded the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Medal for eminent service to chamber music at the celebration of Founders' Day in the auditorium of the Library of Congress yesterday afternoon.

T. A. Shone, first secretary of the British Embassy, received the medal in behalf of Mr. Cobbett and will turn it over to the British Ambassador when he returns to this country, who will in turn transmit it to the recipient in England, who was unable to be present at the ceremony.

In the establishment of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation, the terms used by Mrs. Coolidge to express her intentions were broad, and they culminated in a general authority to apply the fund in whatever ways might promote the art of music and further the purposes of musicology.

The obverse side of the medal, the first to be presented by the administrators of the foundation, depicts the familiar eagle with lyre and an encircling legend reading, "The Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Medal for Eminent Service to Chamber Music." The reverse reads, "Awarded by the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation to Walter Wilson Cobbett on Founder's Day, 1932, Library of Congress, Washington."

A program of classical music was presented by the South Mountain String Quartet and Carl Weinrich, organist.
